ALLEGED JAPANESE FLIGHT OVER SIBERIA

Texas Guinan.

TEXAS GUINAN'S TRAGIC END

DEFIANT TO THE LAST

A COLOURFUL HISTORY

Vancouver, Wash., Nov. 5.
Texas Guinan, New York's famous Night Club Queen, died in hospital here to-day, after an operation.

She died as she lived, carefree and defiant.

"A speedy funeral" was her last request.

She said she wanted a "motor police escort and a bunch of college boys singing loudly while the coffin was being put into the hole, with Uncle Sam's 'Dripping Dry Boys' (Prohibition Agents) and big Butter-and-Egg Men (pro-fiteers) and suckers in attendance. Her last words were her famous remark of welcome: "Give the little girl a great big hand."

COLOURFUL CAREER.

In her colourful career, Texas Guinan was in turn a cow-girl, a circus rider, an actress and a night club proprietress. She was born on a ranch in Texas and was brought up among cowboys. Accustomed to riding every kind of horse from childhood she became when 16 a bare-back rider in a circus. Then she was an actress and later ran a night club in New York. She had just the qualifications needed—unbounded self-confidence and courage, an air of breezy gaiety, an unlimited capacity for talking and a gift for organisation. Soon there were two or three clubs under her control and she had her own troupe of girl dancers and singers.

RIDING IN STATE.

With a highly developed sense of advertisement, she would ride through the city in state on her favourite horse, dressed in a brilliant costume which included a sombrero, an open-necked shirt and white cowboy trousers. On such occasions she acted as a mounted escort to a motorcade of her cabaret girls—her "kids," as she called them. She never tasted alcoholic liquor herself, but she provided it for her "guests" which led to trouble with the authorities. On one occasion when Prohibition agents paid a surprise visit to one of her clubs after she had gone to bed she got through a trap-door in her pyjamas and led them a long chase over the roofs before she was captured.

DARRIED IN ENGLAND.

In 1931 she resolved that her fame should extend to Europe and, shipping 16 of her "beautiful kids" (a phrase rendered literally in the French papers as "beautiful young goats") with a band, two comedians, a maitre d'hotel and her white horse, she left for London and Paris.

She was, however, prohibited from landing in England. At Havre she found a similar bar regarding France. She and her company were detained for some

VLADIVOSTOCK COMPLAINT

SENSATIONAL ARTICLE
BY M. TROTSKY

RUSO-JAPANESE WAR THREAT

TEN JAPANESE MILITARY PLANES FLEW TWENTY MILES INTO SOVIET TERRITORY ON FRIDAY, ACCORDING TO A MESSAGE FROM VLADIVOSTOCK.

Reuter's Riga correspondent says that a very sharp Soviet protest against this violation of Soviet territory is expected.

In the meantime, the tension between Soviet Russia and Japan is the subject of a sensational article contributed by M. Leon Trotsky, the ex-Communist leader, to L'Oeuvre.

Japan, says M. Trotsky, must expect war against both the Soviet and the United States.

Commenting on the probable outcome of a conflict between Russia and Japan, he says that conditions in both countries have changed to a remarkable extent since the Russo-Japanese war.

The Soviet has been re-born since the Revolution, while Japan has been feudally exploited by her militarists.

FEEBLE CONDITION.

M. Trotsky concludes his article by citing statistics to show that Japan is in a feeble condition compared with the Soviet and with the United States.

He therefore concludes that it should be hoped that the Japanese militarists will decide against tempting destiny.—Reuter.

JAPANESE STATEMENT.

Tokyo, Nov. 6.

The War Office denies knowledge of the alleged flight of Japanese aeroplanes over Soviet territory.

Nothing is known about the alleged incident in Tokyo beyond the Tass report from Moscow.—Reuter.

LORRY WRECKED

ANOTHER MISHAP IN BANK DEMOLITION

One of the huge pillars which graced the entrance of the old premises of the Bank, wrecked a new Ford Lorry belonging to the Yee Sang Tai Firm yesterday.

The lorry was stationary in Wardley Street.

A huge pillar consisting of a number of cylindrical pieces of granite held together by cement, was being lifted by a crane when a portion of it fell and, dropped upon the lorry at a point near the driver's seat, almost cutting the vehicle into two.

Fortunately there was no one in or near the lorry at the time.

Owing to the unsettled weather, the International Pageant arranged by St. Andrew's Church, will be held in the Church Hall this evening and not on the tennis court as previously announced. The Pageant, which was shown twice on Saturday is being repeated to-night to give those who missed seeing it an opportunity of attending.

time in the hostel for migrants until they could be shipped back home. The failure of her plans was a great disappointment to her.—Reuter and Special.

SHAKE-UP IN ITALY

GENERAL BALBO TO RESIGN

STRONG RUMOURS PERSIST

Rome, Nov. 5.

Strong rumours are in circulation that the King will to-morrow accept the resignation of General Balbo, the Minister for Air.

It has, however, been impossible to obtain confirmation of the rumour which has been gaining strength daily, despite one official statement that it is merely a repetition of a rumour circulated some time ago.

It is, however, firmly believed in normally well-informed quarters that a Cabinet shake-up is to be expected shortly.

It is said that Signor Mussolini intends to combine the War Office, Air Minister and Naval Department into a Ministry of National Defence, combining the Army, the Navy and the Air Force, and that Signor Mussolini will himself take charge of the Ministry.

This would necessitate the resignation of Admiral Sirtani, of the Navy Office, as well as General Balbo.—Reuter.

OUTBREAK FEARED IN SAAR

REPRESSION DECREE ISSUED

Saarbrücken, Nov. 3.

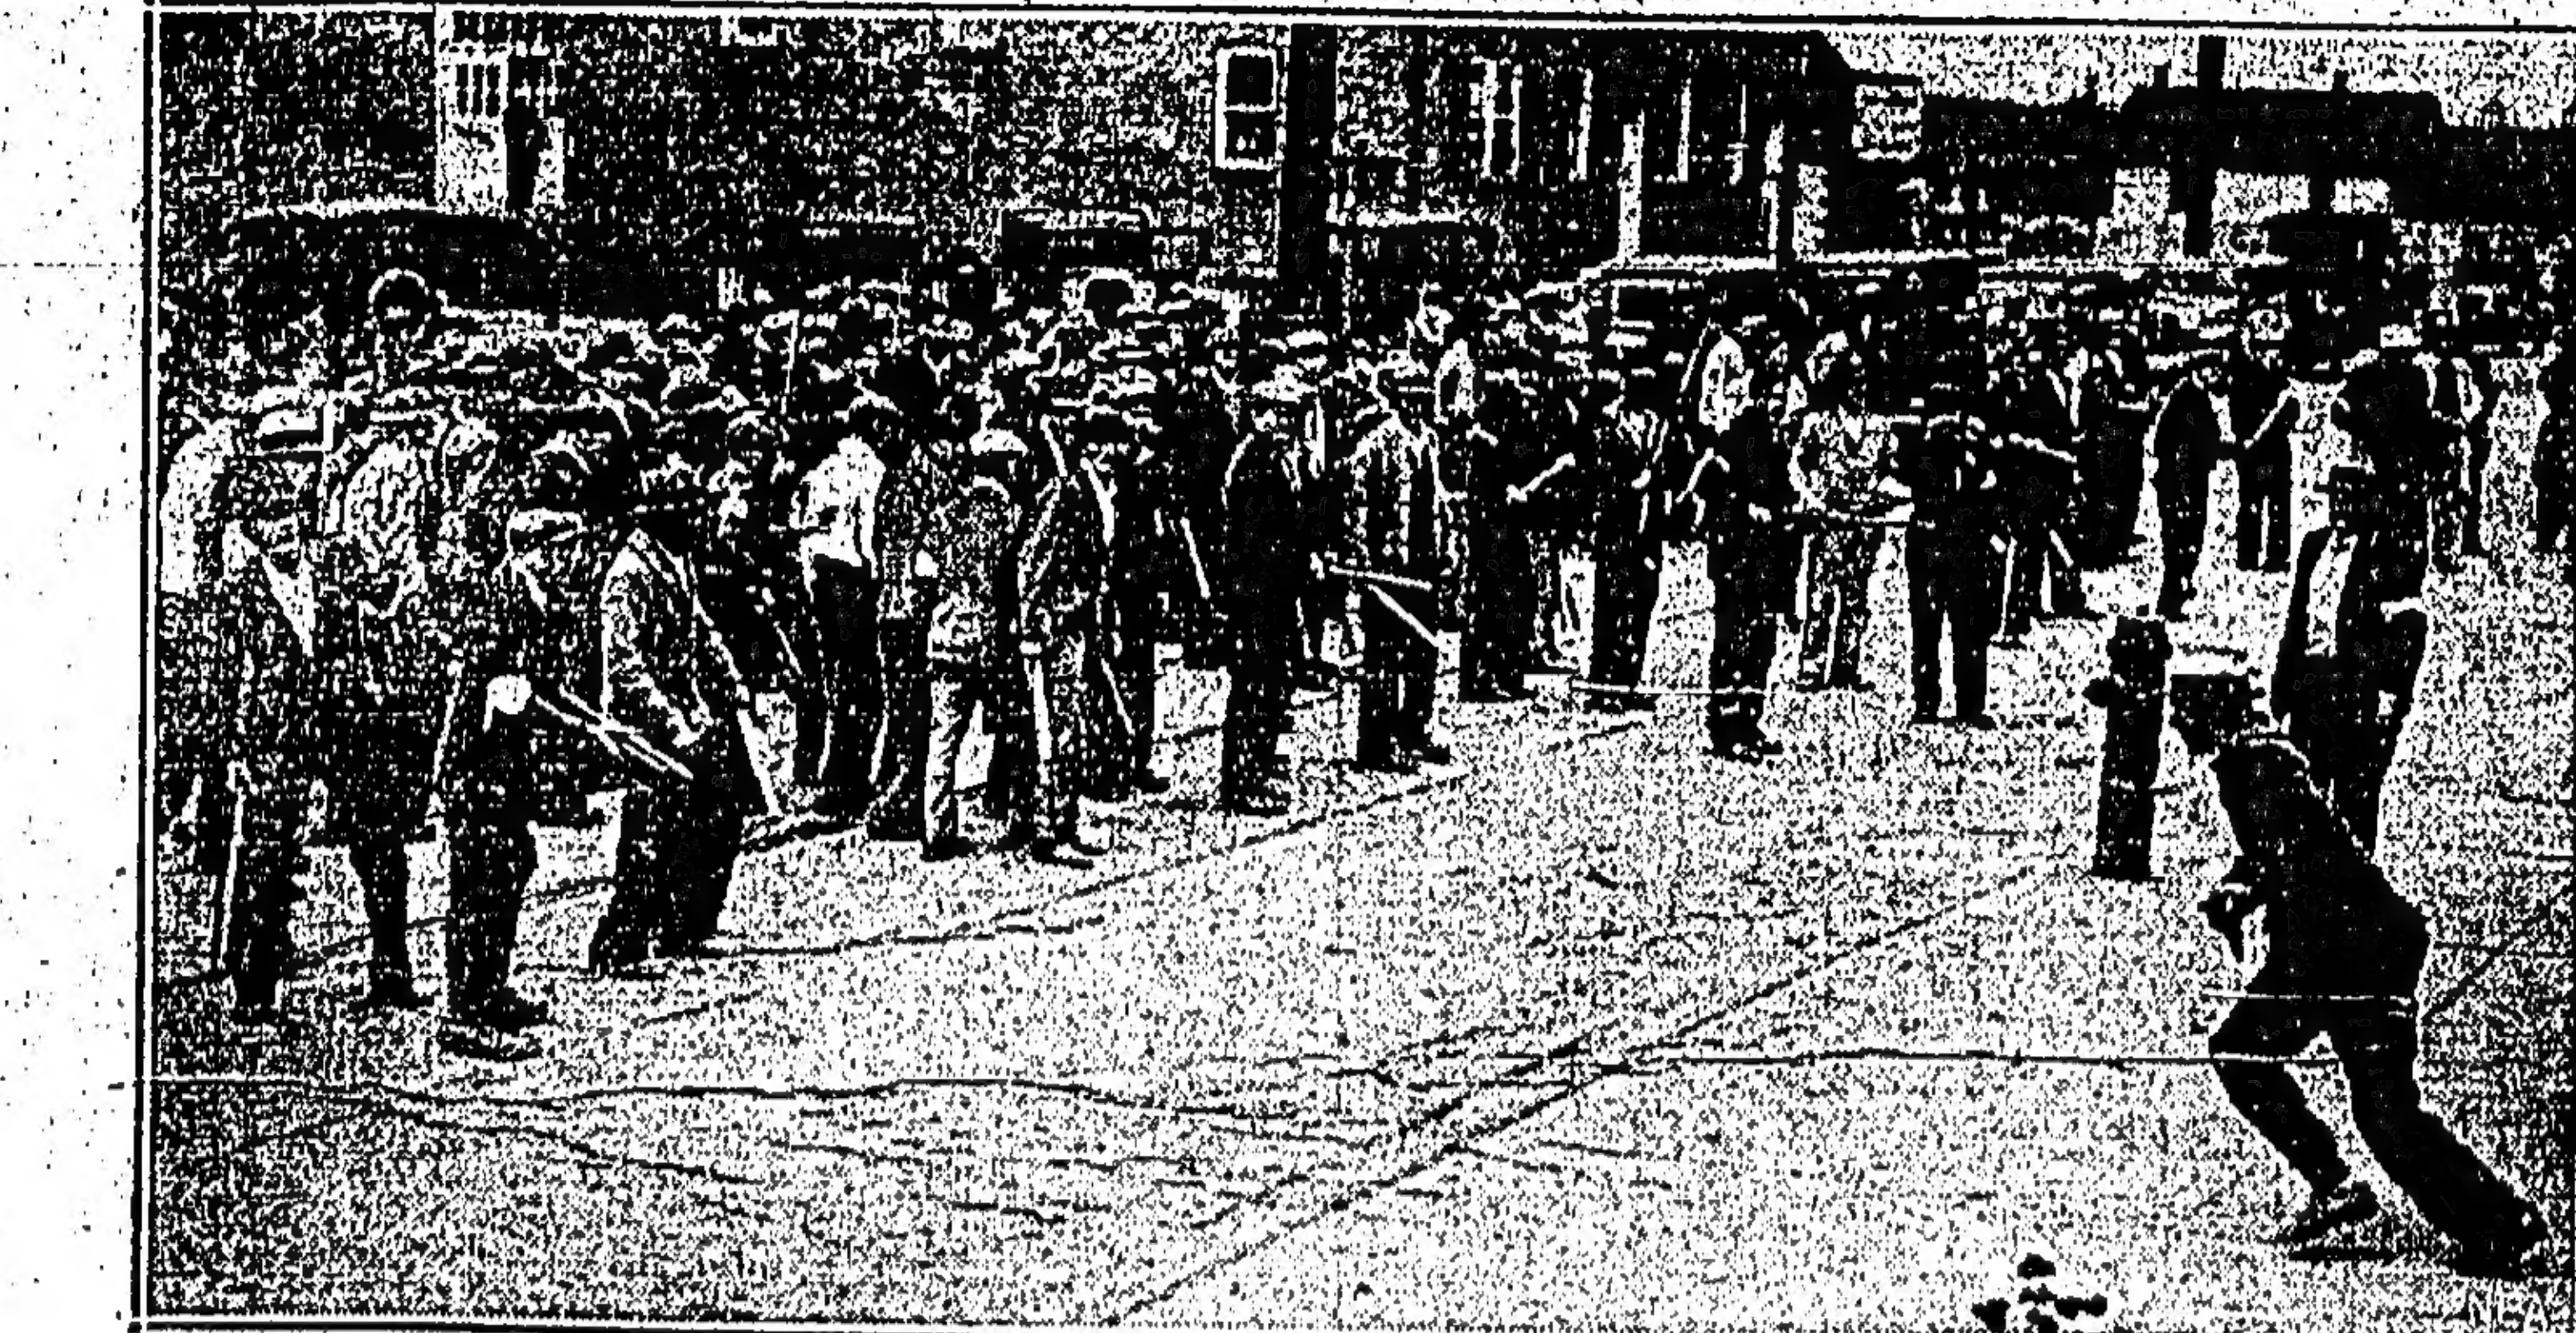

The League of Nations commission governing the Saar basin has issued a repression decree, due to Nazi demands for the return of the basin to Germany.

The population was so inflamed by developments that French authorities fear an outbreak which will cause trouble between France and Germany.

The decree included an increase in prison fines for carrying arms, and restricted the display of flags and political activities.

The Saar basin is to hold a plebiscite in 1935 to determine whether it will continue in its present status under the League, revert to Germany or go to France.

With this highly controversial question impending, the League commission has a difficult task in keeping the peace, particularly in view of the new aggressiveness of the Nazis.

Scenes of violence have accompanied many of the recent strikes in the United States. The above picture was taken in the Pennsylvania coal area recently, showing men armed for combat.

TYPHOON'S TOLL

HEAVY DAMAGE IN ANNAM

THIRTY KILLED

Paris, Nov. 5.

It is learned from Hanoi that the typhoon which swept in rapidly from the Pacific, across the Philippines and into the Gulf of Tongking, struck the coast of Annam with extreme violence.

Considerable damage has been done and (says Reuter) thirty deaths have to be included in its toll.

Another story of devastation by the typhoon comes from Palawan, where extensive damage was done.

A devastating flood followed in the wake of the storm, sweeping through the Iwahig penal colony.

One prisoner, C. A. Faustino, was drowned in the flood. The typhoon and flood wrought havoc to buildings and crops. A telegraphic report on the damage caused by the typhoon was sent to the director of prisons by Captain E. Misa, superintendent of Iwahig penal colony.

SIX FEET OF WATER.

The typhoon destroyed lines of communications, he reported, resulting in lack of reports from points inland. Exhibits in the carnival were among the articles washed away by the flood. The water rose at points to a height of six feet, destroying levees and five large bridges.

The entire colony is now busy removing the debris left by the flood. Heavy loss of life, including women and children, was averted through the heroic efforts of employees and colonists. The water supply system was destroyed as well as thousands of coconut trees.

Captain Misa's report to the director of prisons, reads as follows: "A devastating flood swept over the colony. Twenty kilometres of the provincial road, five large bridges, the Bécayo oil soap factories, the water supply system and numerous concrete and dirt levees were destroyed. Communications were interrupted, and reports are incomplete.

HEAVY DAMAGE.

"Thousands of coconut trees, banana plants, bangus fry, hundreds of fruit trees, cubos, privately owned domestic animals, portion of the palay crop, copra and some government equipment and supplies were lost. "Quilina was under six feet of water. Logs, lumber, furniture and articles in the carnival exhibits were washed away. "The Zabab family moved from their residence by launch. Heavy toll in life, women and children, was averted through the heroic efforts of employees and colonists.

TYPHOON SIGNAL HOISTED

Sudden Development Near Colony?

No. 1 typhoon signal was hoisted shortly after ten o'clock this morning.

Strong gusty weather had been prevailing since the early hours of this morning. The weather suggests the sudden development of a disturbance close to the Colony. No previous reports had been received.

JAPANESE PRINCESS PASSES AWAY

Tokyo Court in Mourning

Tokyo, Nov. 3.

Princess Nobuko Asaka, aunt of Emperor Hirohito, died early to-day.

She married Prince Asaka May 9, 1910.

The Emperor and his family went into a 20-day period of mourning.

To-day's state banquet was cancelled while rituals performed the Washido Dokoro ceremonies.

Emperor Hirohito will remain in seclusion.

H.M.S. Wild Swan sails for Shanghai on Friday, and H.M.S. Medway and Small Ships are due in the Colony from the north on Thursday.

Dr. R. A. de Castro Basto, M.D., D.O.M.S., the well-known Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat specialist, accompanied by Madame Basto, returned to the Colony on Saturday by the M.V. Conte Verde.

No news from Inagawan and distant outstations."

PUBLIC WORKS HIT.

The typhoon wrought extensive damage to property, houses, public works and crops in the Visayas. One person was killed in Pangasinan, Bohol.

The governor of Bohol reported that 19 houses in the town of Pangasinan were completely destroyed by the storm and at least 20 others were partially destroyed.

The Mambajao wharf in Oriental Misamis and the shed under construction there were badly damaged. Many sections of the provincial roads were washed away, rendering the roads impassable in many places throughout the province.

All lines of communication, in Bohol, except those in Tagbilaran, are down, as are all lines in Oriental Negros save those in its capital, Capiiz and Bukidnon, also reported heavy destruction to property and communications.

VIOLENCE IN MIDDLE WEST

FARM STRIKE REVIVED AND MORE INTENSE

TWO MILLIONS AFFECTED

Dos Moines, Nov. 5.
Two million farmers in more than half the States of the Union are involved in the renewed farm strike in the Middle West.

The revival of strike agitation for prices showing a fair profit has swept through the agricultural States following indication of President Roosevelt's opposition to deliberate price-fixing for farm produce.

In their present mood, it is stated, such price-fixing is the only thing that will satisfy the farmers.

EVERY WEAPON.

The Iowa strike-leader has ordered the farmers "to use every weapon" to achieve their objective.

Farm skirmishes, bombing and shooting and the demolition of cheese factories, have been features of the strike so far, and there is grave reason to fear that the violence may become more serious.

COMPROMISE SOUGHT.

Meanwhile, Mr. Wallace, the Secretary of the Agriculture Department, and the Governors of the Farm States are drafting a new formula, embodying parity prices, a quota system and United States purchases of surpluses.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

The Greek authorities have refused to extradite Insull and the United States have responded by denouncing the Extradition Treaty.

Seven were killed, including two women and two children when a plane crashed into a house at Shrewsbury, N. J., setting the place on fire.

ROCKET STORY DENIED

Human Passenger "Invention"

Berlin, Nov. 6.
It is learned from Stettin that the Sunday Referee rocket story is denied.

It is declared that the last rocket experiment on the Baltic Coast was held in July, 1932, and that was a failure.—Reuter.

INTERPORT WASHOUT

NO PLAY LIKELY TO-DAY

DECISION JUST BEFORE START

The overnight rain having already made the commencement of the Triangular Cricket Interport Series doubtful, a sharp shower which fell at 10.30 a.m. to-day rendered play impossible for the match between Hongkong and Malaya—for the morning at any rate.

After an inspection of the ground early this morning, it was decided to go on with the game if the rain held off. The pitch was soaked, but not impossible to be played on.

The players of both sides were gathered at the Hongkong Cricket Club pavilion, and some of the Malayan players were having a knock-up, when the shower came, and it was agreed by the two captains, H. Owen Hughes (Hongkong) and R. N. Hamilton (Malaya) to abandon the game for the morning.

Coinciding with this decision came the announcement that the No. 1 Typhoon Signal had been hoisted.

Unless the weather clears up considerably, it seems doubtful if there will be any play to-day.

R. N. Hamilton told a Telegraph representative that the Malayan team would consist of the following:

R. N. Hamilton (Capt.), V. Croome, W. O. Jonklaas, G. Willis, D. C. Burn, R. G. Gibson, R. Morgan, L. Alvis, E. Cheow-tok, B. S. Gill and C. A. Speldewinde, 12th man—R. B. Lewis.

THE PALESTINE SITUATION

BRITISH PLANES DISPERSE RIOTERS

Jerusalem, Nov. 5.
British airplanes zoomed down threateningly to disperse hundreds of Arabs enroute to Jerusalem to protest against Great Britain's Jewish policy in Palestine.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

A Setting to Whet Lagging Appetites

Nothing whets lagging appetites so much as food served out of doors. When your family refuses to eat these hot days, try serving a few al fresco meals.
Have simple furniture that won't get ruined by rain. Don't take your very best china and linen out into the yard for picnic meals. Tablecloths of some oilcloth variety are best. They won't show spots and they save laundry. You simply wipe them off with a damp cloth.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

There is much to be said in favour of lines on the face of a woman over thirty five. And much to be said against them if she is younger.

Lines and wrinkles naturally
come with maturity and it is practically impossible to prevent all of them. Nor would you want to. A few lines on the face of an older woman add a lot of character and interest to her face. Some of the most beautiful older women in the world have many fine laugh lines around their eyes and the inevitable vertical lines around their mouths. One cannot imagine them being beautiful without those lines.

But when it comes to the younger girl, lines and wrinkles are an entirely different matter. You should take steps to prevent them while your skin is still firm and young.

There are nourishing creams for the dry skin. Dryness is one of the most prevalent causes of premature lines.

Why not shop around a bit for rollable nourishing and tissue creams? When you find one, plan to use it every night after you have cleaned your face. Leave it on all night occasionally.

Don't overlook the importance of muscle oils for the lines around your eyes. The oil should be warmed slightly, patted on the spots where lines may appear and left on all night.

Our Chic twins illustrate the evening mode in frocks of sheer crepe—cornflower blue.
Velvet ribbon, in a deeper hue, accents the youthful round neck-line and accents the slender waist.

SIMPLICITY and charm, as usual, distinguish this presentation of the Chic twins. Perhaps you would prefer this model in a pastel shade of diaphanous chiffon. In any event, you can procure a pattern in any of six sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 (with corresponding bust measurements of 33½, 35, 36½ and 38) and 40 and 42. Size 18 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material. For trimming, the neck and bow require 1½ yards, and the belt and bow 2½ yards.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

CHAPTER XVIII.

"Meanwhile, at the Mermala—"

A minute later Leonard and Napoleon were leaning over the side of the wreck, hailing the occupants of the boat.

"Hallo there!" cried Leonard. "Hallo!" sang back Mr. Griddle.

"Are you all right?" "Rather! Haven't a rippling line," replied Napoleon. "But what's brought you along?"

"We heard a shot," Jessica Fyne's voice called, anxiously. "Are you sure no one's hurt?"

"There you are!" exclaimed Napoleon triumphantly to Leonard. "You see, I do the right thing by instinct!" Then, turning towards the boat again, he said, "No, no one's hurt."

"Beastly shame!" It was Beryl's voice now. "We've brought along such a perfectly lovely First Aid set!"

"Do you mean to say you heard the shot from the hotel?" asked Leonard, as the boat drew alongside.

"We didn't," she said, responded Beryl, glancing at Jessica. "If people will sit by open windows late at night, instead of going properly to sleep, they're bound to hear unpleasant sounds. Particularly if the wind's in the right direction. But what's happened? Do tell us! We've had an awful scare. You don't mean to say, Nappy—?"

"Oh, I do, I do," jerked Napoleon. "Call me names, if you like, but I did it to win five shillings. Yes, I expect I was a fearful ass, but I swore I'd show the world what a hero I could be and get the limelight turned on me for once!"

"But the limelight seems to be on two of you," said Jessica, looking at Leonard.

"Yes—I expect I'm only half a hero, really," returned Napoleon, "but half a hero's better than none. I didn't know where to find a blessed boat, and I asked Sefton to help me. When we found the boat, I refused to back out, and he refused to let me come alone. He peered over the side. As that you, Morley? I rather hoped No. 4 would be Guy. I like spot cash. Where is Guy? Thought he'd have joined the merry party."

No one replied for a moment. Then Beryl answered, seriously. "I don't know where Guy is, Nappy. We hoped we'd find him here."

"Good Lord!" murmured Napoleon. "Do you mean that your brother isn't in his room?" queried Leonard, quietly.

"No, he's not there, Mr. Sefton," responded Beryl. "When Miss Fyne came to my room—after hearing the shot, you know—I decided to rout up Guy first. You see, we thought he could then rout up you, if necessary. But Guy wasn't there. So we tried your room—and you weren't there. And then we tried yours, Nappy—and you weren't there."

"I guessed I wasn't," murmured Napoleon. "I believe I was next on the list of eligibles," interposed Valentine Morley. "By the time they'd woken me, the noise had roused Mr. Griddle, also, so we thought we'd better make up a little party and come along to see what the trouble was. And we're still waiting to know. What was that shot? And where's your boat? Round the other side?"

"No—our boat's been taken," answered Leonard, slowly. "We found someone on board here—"

"What's that?" cried Mr. Griddle sharply. "You found someone on board, you say?"

"Yes. A sort of lunatic, I reckon. Anyway, while we were playing hide and seek with him, he slipped off in our boat, and left us marooned. Truelove fired into the water, to scare him and get a little of his own back—and that's the shot you heard, Miss Fyne."

"It's horrible!" exclaimed Jessica, with a shudder. "Who could it have been? I noticed a light from the wreck once, I thought, and that was one reason why I guessed where the shot came from."

"And I helped the guess, by recalling that idiotic but you made with my young brother, Nappy," added Beryl. "We never thought it was serious, though. I'm sure Guy didn't, either. Couldn't believe you'd have the madness—or the courage—to do it."

"There's one thing I don't understand," observed Morley. "You say me. When we found the boat, I the other chap went off in your boat. But surely he had a boat of his own? Where is it?"

"Nowhere," answered Leonard. "How he got on the wreck is one of the various mysteries we seem to be up against."

"Perhaps you and I aren't the only swimming enthusiasts in the neighbourhood, Mr. Sefton?" suggested Beryl Haines.

"My hat!" cried Napoleon, suddenly. "It's Daisy!"

"Eyes were directed towards him rather anxiously. His exclamation did not appear to fit into the conversation. But Leonard understood it, and followed Napoleon's gaze.

"By Jove—it is Daisy!" he murmured. "Where's Daisy?" asked Beryl. "Is she a rival?"

"You're sitting in her," responded Napoleon. "If you mean this is a daisy boat, I don't agree—"

"Just the same, it is a Daisy boat, because that's her name!" retorted Napoleon. "Where the deuce did you pick her up? That's the boat we rowed across in—and the boat our lunatic went away!"

The eyes staring up from below grew wide in astonishment. Beryl gave a little shudder, and Valentine Morley jerked his head round suddenly at nothing.

"We found it on the beach at Craydon," said Jessica, after a short silence.

"A little fishing community about half-a-mile from your hotel?" asked Leonard.

"Yes. Do you know it?" "Yes. That's where we found the boat, too."

"I knew we'd find a boat there, so we went there at once, and we took this boat because it was on the edge of the water. Mr. Griddle said he believed someone had lately used it, but we didn't want to waste time, we just got in and pushed off."

"That little boat will get giddy," commented Leonard. "It's working overtime. But, you know, you and Miss Haines shouldn't have come—"

"We insisted," retorted Beryl, with a smile. "We were so anxious about our two daring darlings. We refused to be left behind."

"After hearing that shot, did you think of telephoning to the police?" asked Leonard.

"He looked at Jessica, and she looked back at him. "I did," she said, slowly. "It seemed to me the best thing to do—in the new circumstances."

"I agree. Perhaps we ought—but never mind that now. You got on to them?"

"No, we only tried to," interposed Mr. Griddle grimly. "We couldn't."

"Why not?" He shrugged his shoulders. "Because everybody's mind to-night. Someone had cut the wires."

Again, a short silence fell upon the company. The cutting of the telephone wires was unpleasantly significant.

"What about getting back?" suggested Morley.

"I'm sure I'm ready," answered Mr. Griddle, almost querulously. "But you mentioned 'one of the mysteries,' Mr. Sefton. Have you found any more on your wreck?"

"We've found a dead man," replied Napoleon, ingenuously. "He's here now."

The information caused some commotion down in the little boat, while Leonard, for the first time, felt really angry with Napoleon Truelove.

"Why blurt it out like that?" he exclaimed.

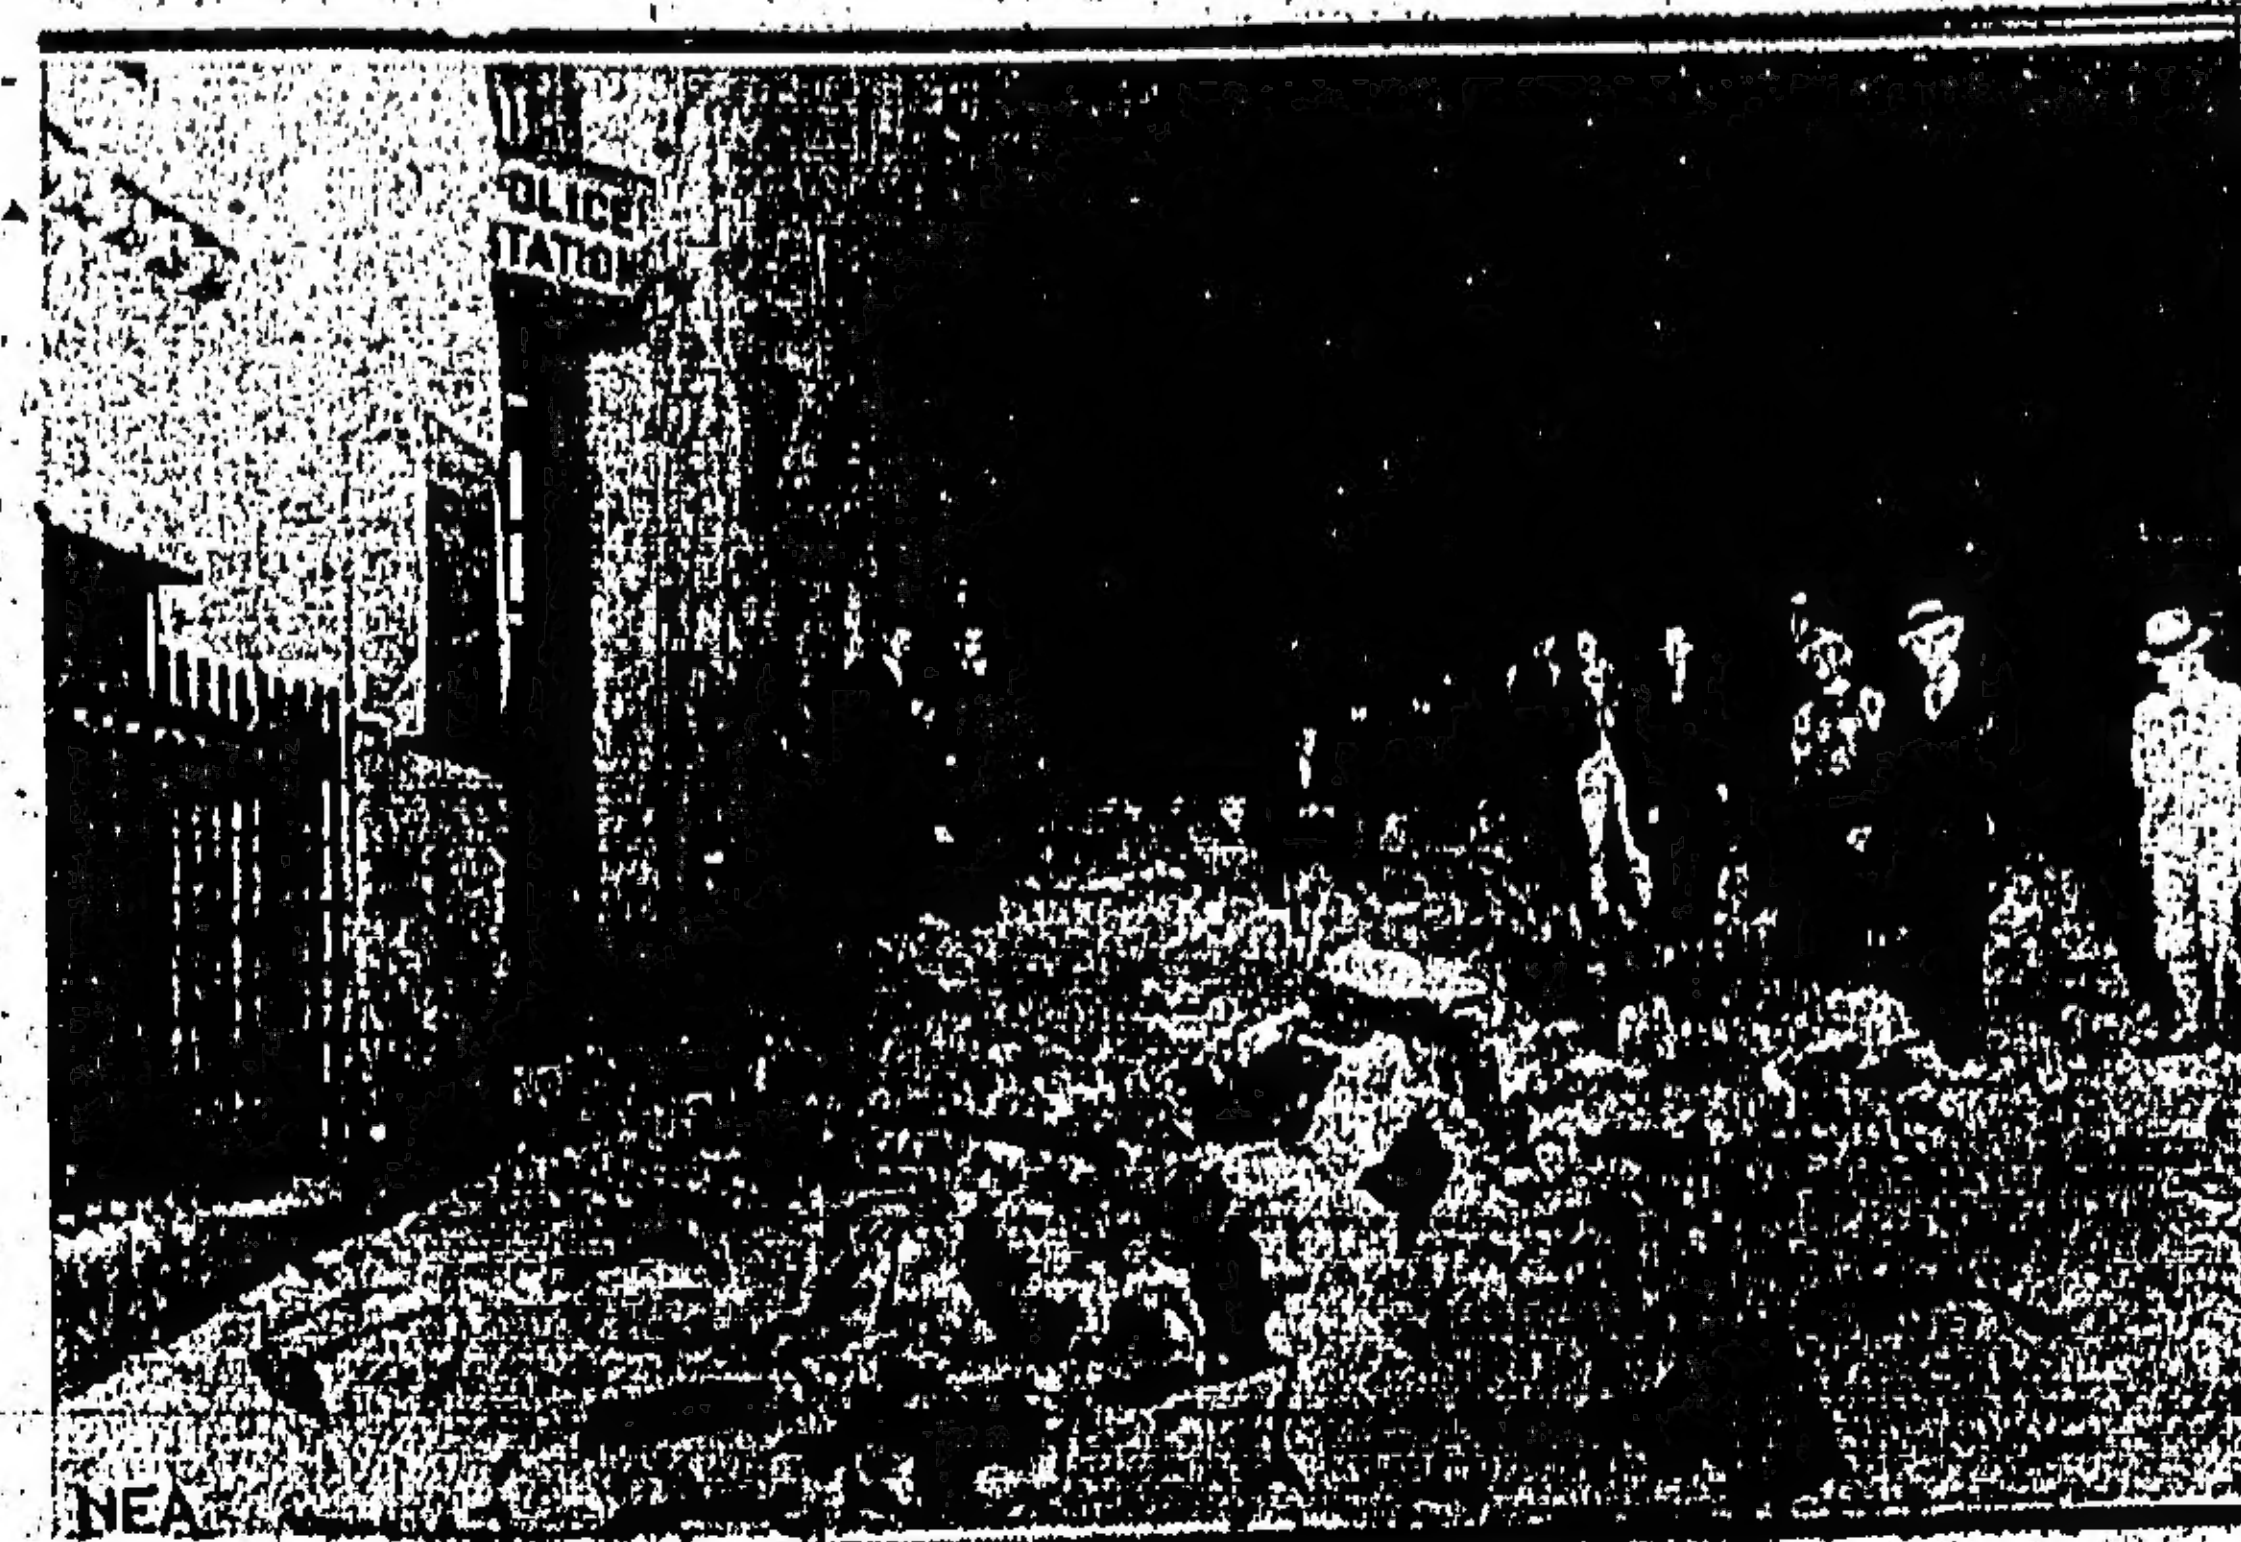

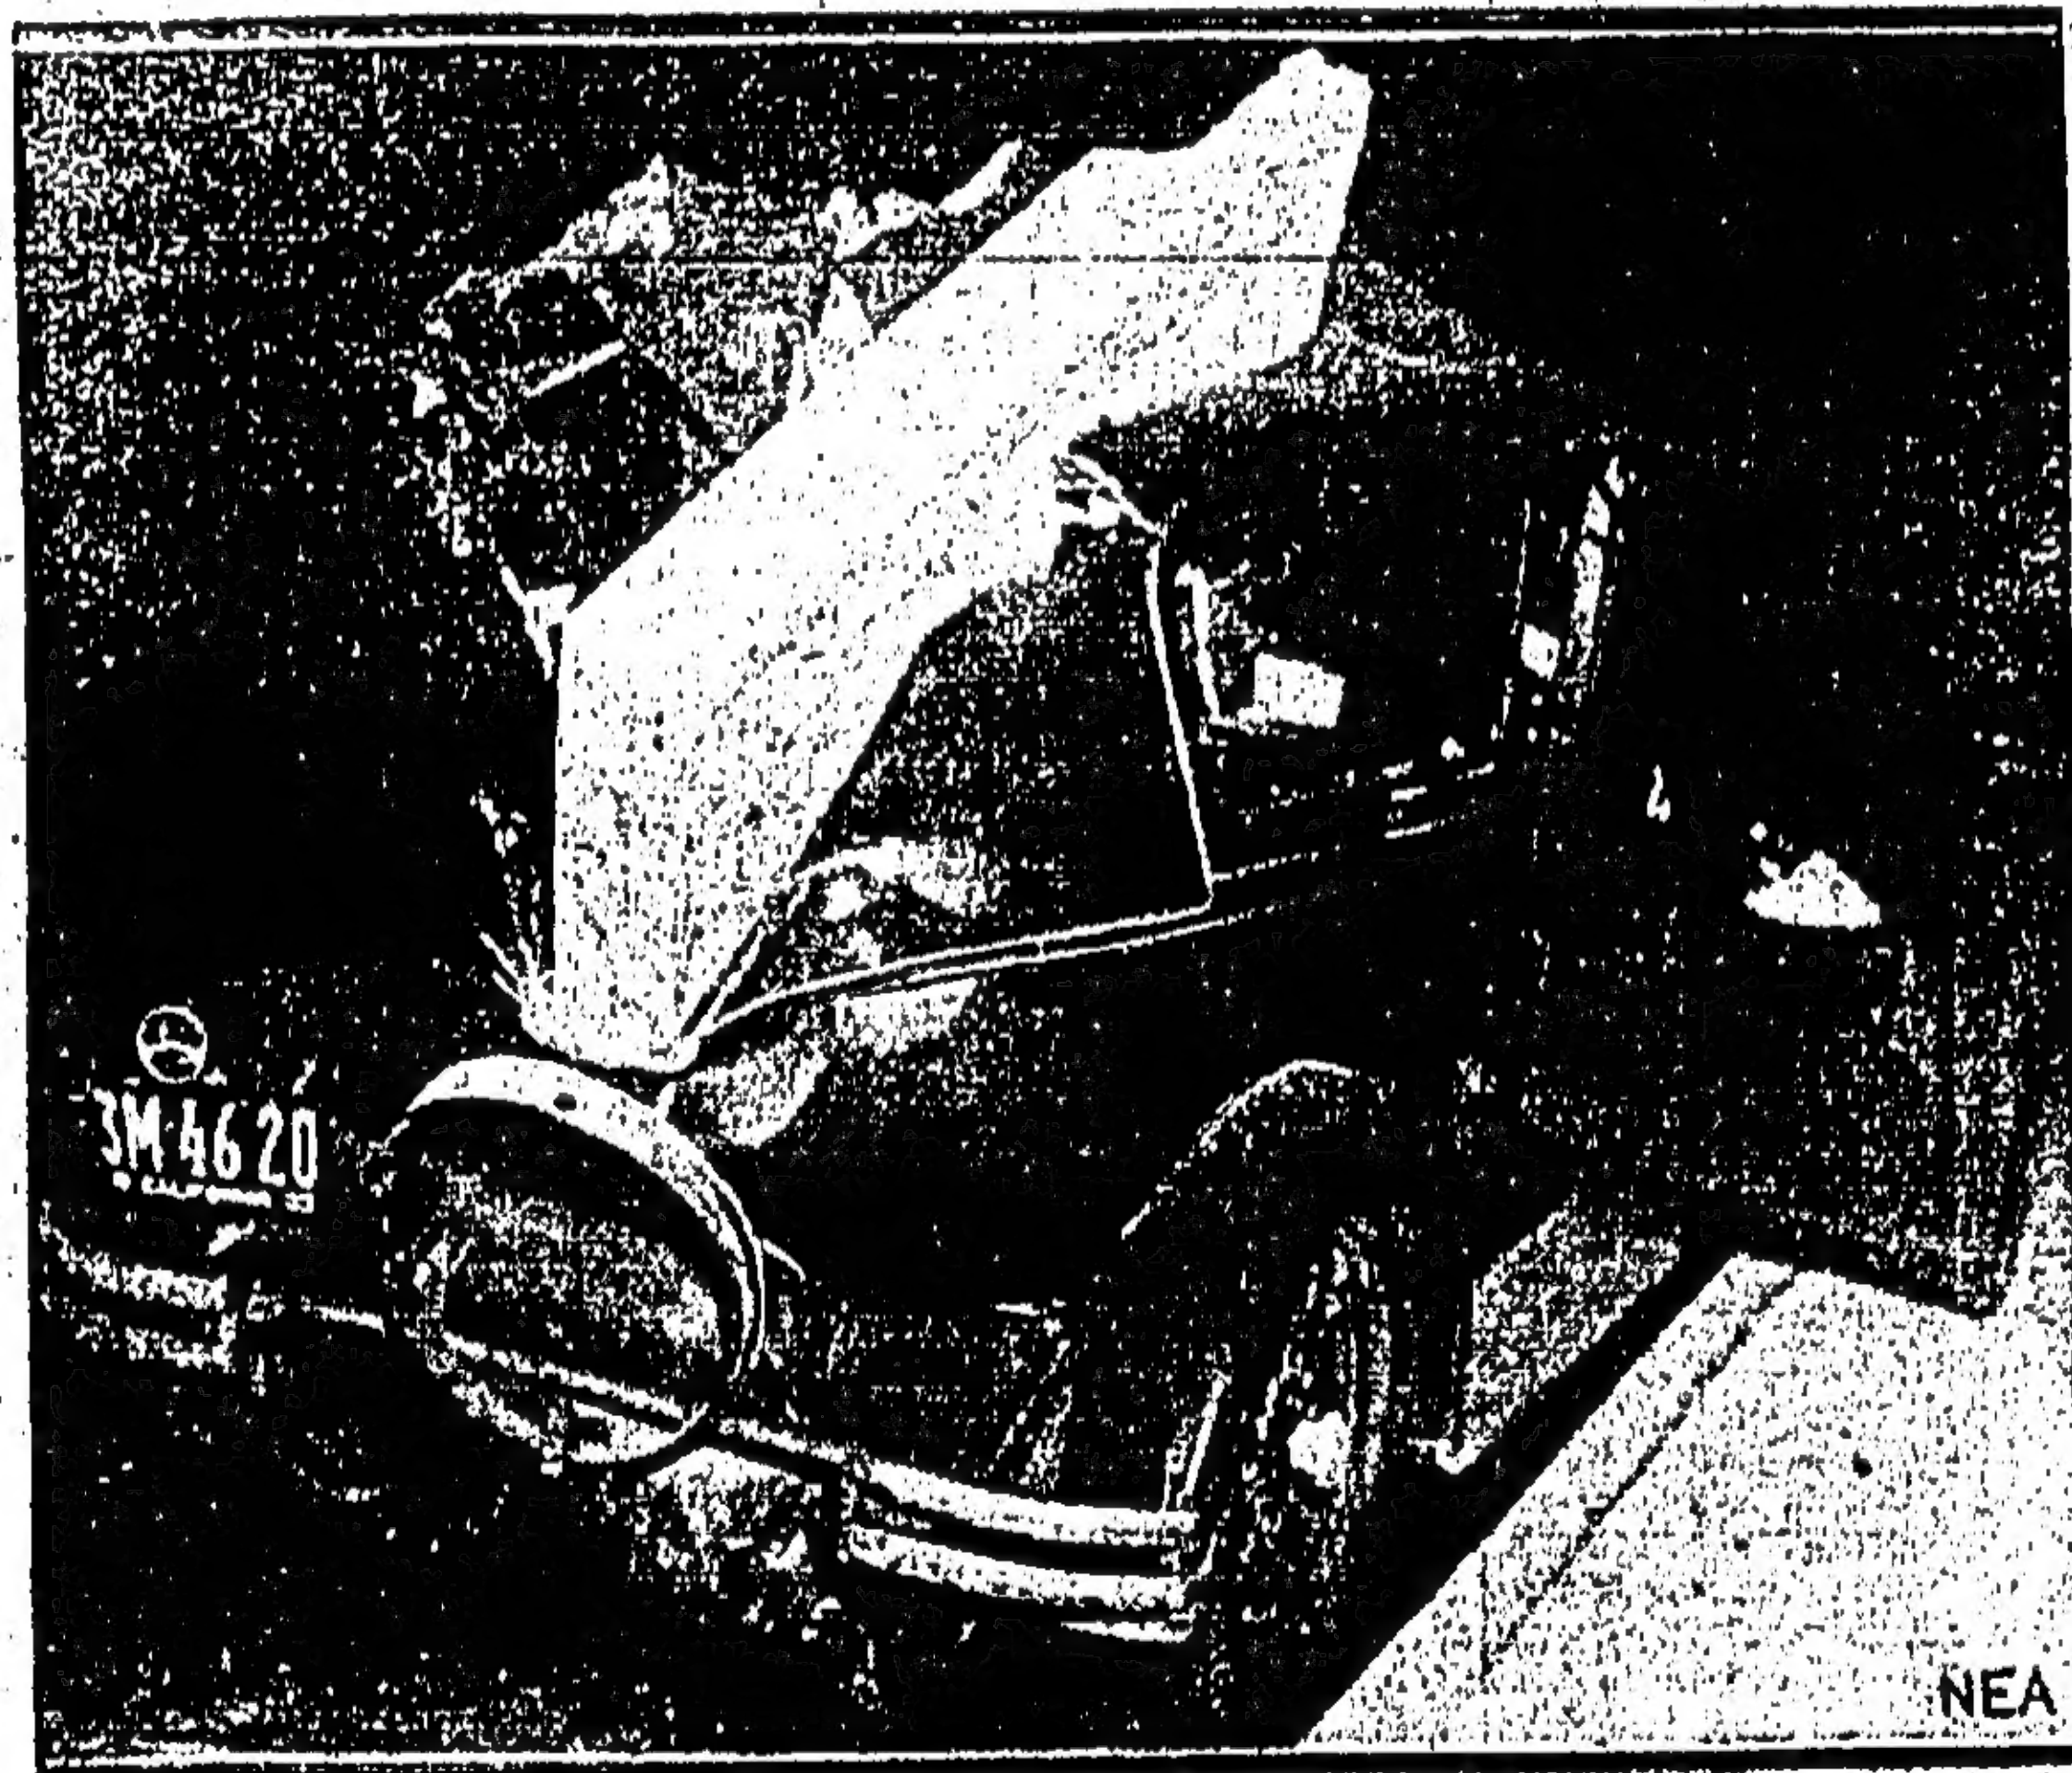

The anger passed the next moment, however. Napoleon was genuinely contrite.

"I am an ass," he murmured, penitently. "But the fact is I'm getting so hardened—"

"A dead man?" chimed in Mr. Griddle, excitedly. "Good heavens! What's behind all this? Morley, I think we'd better get on board."

"Not both of you," replied Leonard. "One of you must stay in the boat. No, it's no one you know, Miss Fyne," he added quickly, as he caught her expression. "Don't worry."

Despite his age, Mr. Griddle swung himself up to the deck, and demanded to be taken to the place (Continued on Page 5.)

A BROKEN DOWN SYSTEM. This is a condition (or disease) to which many persons are given but few really understand. It is simply weakness—a break down as it were, of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its causes (they are almost numberless), its symptoms are much the same: the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weakness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is essential in all such cases is increased vitality—vigor, vital strength and energy to throw off these morbid feelings and so most assuredly the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY, THERAPION No. 3 than by any other known combination. So surely as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions will the shattered health be restored. THE EXPIRING LAMP OF LIFE LIGHTED UP AFRESH and new existence imparted in place of what had so lately seemed worn-out, tired and valueless. This preparation is suitable for all ages, constitutions and conditions, in either sex and it is difficult to imagine a disease or derangement whose main feature is weakness, that will not be speedily and permanently overcome by this recuperative remedy, which is destined to cast out evil and bring in good. It has been used for years by the most eminent medical authorities and its success is attested by the thousands of testimonials which it has procured. It is sold by all chemists and druggists. THE LONDON CO., LTD. 11, W. & A. London, Eng.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

HONGKONG TELEPHONE COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that an Extraordinary General Meeting of the above Company will be held at the Board Room of the Company, Exchange Building, (Second floor), Des Voeux Road Central, Victoria, Hongkong, on Tuesday, the 28th day of November, 1933, at 12 Noon when the subjoined Resolutions will be proposed as Special Resolutions, viz:—

(1) That the present authorised Capital of the Company of $5,000,000 divided into 500,000 shares (hereinafter referred to as "old shares") of the nominal value of $10 each, the whole of which have been issued, be increased to $7,500,000 by the creation of 250,000 new shares of the nominal value of $10 each ranking as for dividend as hereinafter mentioned and in all other respects pari passu with the old shares constituting the Company's present issued capital.

(2) That the said 250,000 new shares be offered forthwith in the first instance (in the proportion of one new share for every complete number of two old shares held by them respectively) to the members of the Company who on the 28th day of November 1933, are registered in the Company's Share Register as the holders of the said 500,000 old shares at par and so that on acceptance of such offer the sum of $2.50 per share shall be due and payable leaving the balance due on each of such said new shares of $7.50 per share to be called up at such time or times as the Directors of the Company shall see fit to make Calls in respect thereof and so that such new shares so accepted as aforesaid shall rank for dividend as from First day of January, 1934.

And that such offer be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted by the member on behalf of himself or his nominee, will be deemed to be declined, and that the Directors be at liberty to fix such time or times and to extend such time or times to such date or dates, and upon such terms as they may think fit. And further that any of the said new 250,000 shares which shall not be taken by the Company's shareholders in manner aforesaid be disposed of in such manner at such time or times and upon such terms as the Company's Directors shall in their absolute discretion think fit.

(3) That no shareholder shall be entitled to any offer of a fraction of an additional new share in respect of any odd old share held by such shareholder.

The Transfer Books of the Company will be closed from the 26th November 1933, to 28th November 1933, (both days inclusive) during which period no transfer of shares can be registered.

ITALIAN CONVENT BAZAAR.

ANNUAL APPEAL RECEIVED GRATIFYING SUPPORT

Bishop Henry Valtorta on Saturday opened the two days' Bazaar and Sales of Work held at the Italian Convent at Caine Road in aid of the orphans and invalids maintained by the Conventual Sisters in various districts of the Colony.

On arrival His Lordship was received by the Mother Superior, Teresa Martinola, and a unique Guard of Honour comprised of the matriculated students of the institution. His Lordship inspected the various stalls laid out with a large variety of articles in the Great Hall, and a number of side-shows and attractions giving to the function the gay aspect of a Fair. The occasion constituted practically the only assured means of assistance from the public for a very deserving cause, and there was a gratifying response to the appeal.

ROSITA FORBES ASKS

As an afterthought, while she was turning away, she said, "But I haven't told you my name—it is Foch."

WOMEN OF THE AIR.

Of the airwomen who have so gallantly girdled the earth, I was most impressed by Amelia Earhart. I met her after her first crossing of the Atlantic, on which she'd been so sick that most people would have vowed never again to leave the earth. She was pale to her lips and her voice was almost inaudible. Winston Churchill had just said that the people who did things could never make speeches, and that good speakers had never done anything worth talking about! It was, therefore, a difficult moment. Miss Earhart took charge of it in the most unassuming way. In two minutes, she had knicked all the bombast out of the occasion. In five, we might have been at a Board of Transport meeting. When we left, we all felt that if we hadn't already flown the Atlantic it was because we hadn't had time for it among other more important occupations.

"What are you going to do next?" I asked the unconcerned heroine. "Go home," she said. "I meant—are you going to try flying over here alone?"

"Yes, of course, I like flying, don't you?"

A BEVY OF ENGLISH.

Clair Sheridan, tawny and vital and eager, adventurer in the grand manner, who has wandered over the earth collecting heads (sculptured) of Charlie Chaplin and Gandhi, Mussolini and Lenin and such like, reminds one of a great wind blowing headlong from strange countries. She makes one see pictures and dream dreams. Rebecca West is a scapell, used on the ulcers of mediocrity. She has a provocative mind. Her wit is supple as Damascus steel and it is sheathed in a voice of that same city's velvet.

Sybil Thorndike, who, when she was playing Grand Guignol, told me she thought fear was the most enthralling of all emotions, has done great work for the theatre and Virginia Wolfe for contemporary literature. But we have lost Gertrude Bell, who helped to make the new nation of Iraq, and Doctor Scharlieb, to whom all women are indebted because she made gynaecology a science, relieving childbirth of half its pain.

We still have Madame David Niell, a French middle-aged bourgeois, greatest of living explorers. She is the only European who has reached Lhasa and left it undiscovered. For three years she lived as a Tibetan nun and for 11 years more she travelled in unknown country, in hourly danger of death by the most appalling torture; and she did all these stupendous journeys on her own, without money, or prestige, or help of any sort. When the map of the world is complete her name must be written across it with those of Burton and Livingstone, but what other living woman will go down to history?

OLD COMRADES.

LOCAL BRANCH OF R.A.M.C. ASSOCIATION FORMED

Monday, November 13, will see the inauguration of a new Association in the Colony. In starting a Hongkong Branch of the Royal Army Medical Corps Association, those responsible are "satisfying a long felt want. At present there are many ex-members of the Royal Army Medical Corps residing in the Colony who still take a keen interest in the Corps' activities and will only be too willing to help in any way whatsoever. Since the Association was formed in 1923, great work has been done in the finding of positions for R.A.M.C. men in civilian life. Hundreds of ex-Corps men have been found employment and many new friends have been made. Quite a number of distressed cases have been given a new term of life and their welfare has been seen to by almost paternal eyes. All ex-R.A.M.C. personnel and their friends at present residing in the Colony are cordially invited to the opening dance to be held in the Garrison Lecture Hall on November 13.

where the dead man lay. Morley was perfectly contented to remain in the boat, and offered no protest while the three other men embarked on their short, lugubrious journey. He took advantage of the opportunity to light a much-needed cigarette.

"What's wrong with passing them round?" asked Beryl Haines. "You're not the only one who feels nervous."

Meanwhile, Mr. Griddle was viewing the body. He stared at it long and earnestly, then turned to Leonard with a grunt.

"Well, what do you make of it?" he enquired shortly. "Anything?"

"Precious little," answered Leonard. "I think we'll let the police do the guessing."

"The police? Yes, of course. They'll have to be notified in the morning."

"They'll have to be notified before the morning," replied Leonard, quietly. "They'll have to be notified to-night."

Mr. Griddle frowned. "They can't do anything to-night." "Very likely not, but I think we must give them the chance."

"They'll be most grateful, if I know anything about them," retorted Mr. Griddle, sarcastically. "Anyway, we can't notify them to-night. The phone won't work."

"The phone won't be necessary. I shall walk to the station."

"It's three miles!"

"That's a nuisance, but it can't be helped."

Mr. Griddle's frown grew. "I say, you're taking rather a lot on to yourself, aren't you?" he remarked. "I'm inclined to think this is really a position for a round-the-table discussion."

"But, good Lord, sir," broke in Napoleon, who had listened to this odd duel with considerable interest. "Is there really anything to discuss you know? We find a dead man, and Guy Haines has disappeared—"

"And you think it will help matters to rush off and inform the police? Well, you may be right. But, dammy, it's not hard to guess what conclusion the police will come to!"

"What conclusion will they come to?" asked Leonard.

"They will come to the conclusion which is obvious when one man is found dead and another disappears."

Napoleon was about to make a hasty remark when Leonard stopped him with a look.

"Is that your conclusion, Mr. Griddle?" he enquired.

"I have formed no conclusion—yet," responded the old man. "The fact remains, however, that Guy Haines has vanished at a most inopportune moment, and that the telephone wires have been cut. That is why it seems to me that we should not rush matters, but should only act after careful discussion. Once we let the police in, you see, they will be wretchedly curious—and they may even want to know how it is that you, Mr. Truelove, brought a revolver with

EMPIRE SHIPPING CONFERENCE.

BRITISH CARGOES FOR BRITISH SHIPS

London, Nov. 4. An All-Empire Conference will meet in London early in 1934 to preserve the Empire's cargoes for Empire ships, says the Daily Express.

An organising committee is being formed and invitations will be despatched to the representative shipping interests in the Dominions and the Colonies, this month.

Later, it is learned in the most authoritative shipping circles that it is too early to say when the shipping conference will definitely meet, but there is a strong feeling in many quarters that such a conference is the only solution to the shipping crisis.—Reuter.

you on this rather odd journey of yours. Of course," added Mr. Griddle, with a sour smile, "some interest attaches to this lunatic who appears to have been on the wreck when you arrived. But the police are funny about people who are merely described to them, and whom they do not see with their own eyes."

"By Jove, that's true!" murmured Leonard, and Napoleon stared at him. "You may be correct, after all, Mr. Griddle. Anyhow, I vote we return to the boat now and get back to the hotel. I'm fed up with this old hulk, and want a change of scene."

As they retraced their steps, the old man trotting ahead, Napoleon plucked Leonard's arm and whispered:

"I say, aren't you going for the police?"

"Of course, I am," Leonard whispered back, "but Griddle seems so anxious for me not to that perhaps there's no need to let him know?"

FAIR AND PAGEANT

COLOURFUL DISPLAY AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

St. Andrew's Church grounds at Kowloon presented a colourful spectacle Saturday afternoon when an International Fair and Pageant, declared open by Lady Peel, wife of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., was held.

Nine gaily decked stalls, representing India, France, Ireland, Turkey, England, Holland, Great Britain, England (St. George's Cross) and Italy, were dotted around the grounds and were the centre of a great deal of attraction. Other stalls included the Gipsy Encampment, purveying refreshments, Madame Eve, the clairvoyante, an Aunt Sally, a switchback railway, a lucky dip, and coconut shies.

His Excellency the Governor, and Lady Peel, accompanied by Capt. R. F. Walker, A.D.C., arrived promptly at 2.30 p.m. and were met by the Rt. Rev. Ronald Hall, Bishop of Victoria, Rev. W. W. Rogers, and members of the Fair Committee. The 1st. Kowloon Brownie Pack formed a guard of honour at the entrance.

The Opening Ceremony.

After an opening prayer Bishop Hall, welcoming His Excellency and Lady Peel, said the Church was extremely grateful for the honour bestowed on the Fair by their presence.

After the Fair had been declared open His Excellency made a short speech in which he referred to the untiring work of the Rev. W. W. Rogers at St. Andrew's Church and expressed his regrets that Mrs. Rogers was unable to be present owing to indisposition.

Mr. J. H. Hunt, Chairman of the Executive Committee, thanked His Excellency and Lady Peel again for their presence and referred to the great assistance rendered to the committee by the many helpers.

The Rev. Mr. Rogers, who also spoke, paid tribute to the Church Societies, including the Y.M.C.A. (Women's Section), V.D.M.A., the Lincolshire Ladies and the Y.P.S., for their generous help.

The Governor and Lady Peel then made a tour of the grounds visiting the stalls and chatting with the stallholders and other helpers.

Grand Pageant.

One of the features of the Fair was an International Pageant, which commenced at 3.30 p.m., and continued until 6.30 p.m. The programme was as follows:

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Adam and fallen man" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, yesterday.

The Golden Text was: "For if by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness, shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ" (Romans 5:17).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children; for ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. Wherefore he saith, 'Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light.' For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive" (Eph. 5:1, 8, 10, 14—1 Cor. 15:22).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Did the origin and the enlightenment of the race come from the deep sleep which fell upon Adam? Sleep is darkness but God's creative mandate was, 'Let there be light.' . . . Through discernment of the spiritual opposite of materiality, even the way through Christ, Truth, man will reopen with the key of divine Science the gates of Paradise which human beliefs have closed, and will find himself unfallen, upright, pure and free" (pp. 559, 171).

PAPERS SUSPENDED.

LEAGUE INTERVENTION IN DANZIG

Warsaw, Nov. 5.

The League of Nations' High Commissioner for Danzig, M. Rosting, has requested that a meeting of the League Council be called to discuss the constitutionality of the action of the Danzig police in suspending two Danzig newspapers for publishing the speech of the Vice-President of the Senate, Herr Greiser, in which he instructed that the Danzig police must hold Nazi opinions.

M. Rosting asked the President of the Danzig Senate, Herr Rauschning, to revoke the suspension, but Herr Rauschning refused and declared that if the order were not obeyed, he would order the imprisonment of the complainants in the ground that their action had endangered the security of the Free City.

The Labour-Socialist Association of Danzig has also protested to M. Rosting against its dissolution by the police on the ground that it was endangering the security of the city.—Reuter.

JOYCE WETHERED.

Stated To Be Abandoning Amateur Status.

REPORT UNCONFIRMED.

London, Nov. 4. The Daily Mirror announces on reliable authority that Joyce Wethered, four times British lady golf champion, is turning professional in the near future, and that she has already discussed the possibility with her advisers.

The London paper further states that in an interview Miss Wethered has refused to confirm or deny the report in the above statement and says that her plans for the future are indefinite.

The Daily Mirror's information is that she contemplates playing exhibition matches throughout the country.—Reuter.

POLICE RESERVE.

CHINESE CONCERT AT KING'S THEATRE

Under the distinguished patronage of the Honorable Inspector General of Police, Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, C.M.G., the Chinese Company of the Police Reserve will give a Chinese variety entertainment at the King's Theatre on Thursday at 8.30 p.m., at which His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, and Lady Peel have kindly consented to be present.

The Chinese Company was formed in 1927, being the first unit of the Police Reserve to come into being. Starting with twenty odd members, the Company has grown by leaps and bounds to the present strength of one hundred.

Apart from the issue of uniforms and equipment by the Government, the Company itself has to bear a heavy expenditure such as rental of the Headquarters premises and other expenses which are at present defrayed by a Finance Committee consisting of the Hon. Dr. S. W. T'ao, the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Messrs. Li Yau-tsun, Kwok Siu-lau, Chan Lim-pak, Ngan Shing-kwan, Loung Pat-yue, Chau Tung-sang, Mok Kon-sang, Tang Shiu-kin, Li Sing-kul and P. H. Sin.

This is the first occasion on which a Chinese performance has been staged at the King's Theatre. There will be a long and varied programme and an enjoyable and novel experience is in store for the audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Sit Kok-sin, well-known artists on both the stage and screen, together with other accomplished amateurs, will take part in the performance. An excellent opportunity will thus be afforded to the European community of the Colony to see and hear the best of Chinese play and music, in the most ideal surroundings.

It is hardly necessary to enlarge upon the important position occupied by the Chinese Company in the Police Reserve, and it is hoped that the public will give the function its wholehearted support.

Charges of admission range from $1 to $5 and advance booking will be open at the King's Theatre from Wednesday.

COUNTY MATCHES.

Lancashire And Durham Both Secure Easy Victories.

BIG WIN FOR OXFORD U.

London, Nov. 4.

Both Lancashire and Durham secured easy victories in the county rugby championship to-day, the former visiting Birkenhead and the latter receiving Yorkshires at Hartlepool. Lancashire had little difficulty in winning by scoring 22 points to their opponents' three. Durham successfully held the Yorkshiremen pointless while they themselves scored 17 points.

AN EASY VICTORY.

Maxie Rosenbloom Retains Title In New York.

MICKY WALKER BEATEN.

New York, Nov. 4. Maxie Rosenbloom, the holder, beat Micky Walker on points in a fifteen round fight for the world's light heavyweight boxing title at the Madison Square Garden to-day.

A crowd of 10,000 saw Rosenbloom secure the decision very easily. He won twelve of the fifteen rounds after he had lost the first round during which he was twice warned for fouling. He, however, won the next seven rounds, punching Walker all round the ring.

Walker was hampered by a shorter reach, but very pluckily rallied in the ninth and tenth rounds when he obviously distressed Rosenbloom with a spirited, but short lived, two-fisted attack.

After this, Rosenbloom had matters all his own way.—Reuter.

FUNING TAKEN

ARTILLERY CREATES AWFUL HAVOC

Peking, Nov. 5. After a night of very severe fighting, in which the recently arrived heavy artillery played havoc with the bandit defenders, the Chinese Special Police force recaptured Funing this morning, according to a despatch from Chinese sources.

Almost half of the 1,500 defenders of Funing are reported to have been either killed or wounded, the rest escaping to the hills.

It is generally believed in Chinese circles here that the bandit situation in Luantung is settled with the capture of Funing.

There has been fighting about the city for several weeks past, and losses on both sides have been considerable.—Reuter.

Innocent Victims.

Tientsin, Nov. 5. The city of Funing was at last surrendered to the Chinese Special Police by the bandits following an intensive bombardment of the city last night.

Before their surrender, the bandits placed a large number of innocent inhabitants of the city, including some aged men, on the top of the city wall as a means to compel the Police to suspend their artillery fire.

Now the city is strewn with the dead, bandits and innocent inhabitants.

The Chinese authorities are taking emergency measures for the rehabilitation of the city which has been in the grip of the bandits for a considerable time.—Central News Agency.

Japanese Withdraw.

Peking, Nov. 5. Japanese troops at the district of Mei-yun have completely withdrawn, handing over control of the district to the Chinese police force.

The Chinese police are also prepared to take over control of Shihapchen.—Central News Agency.

MASS CHRISTENING.

ITALIAN BABIES RECEIVE BAPTISM AT ST. PETER'S

Rome, Nov. 5.

Following the successful mass wedding on October 30 when over 2,000 couples were married at dawn, in celebration of the Fascist Marriage Festival, a mass christening was held this evening.

Over 40 babies were christened at St. Peter's, after which an official reception was held, when each child was given a baby's outfit from Mussolini and a medal from the Pope.—Reuter.

The marriage festival was arranged to counteract the severe decline in the Italian birth rate. Each couple married received a photograph of Mussolini and a gift of 500 lire, presented by the Fascist Party.

R. ABBIT HAS A CHAT ABOUT THE H.K. INTERPORT TEAM

HOME FOOTBALL

READING'S FIRST AWAY WIN

POMPEY'S FEAT

(By "The Pilgrim")

The International match at Belfast concluded with drawn honours, each side scoring one goal, though it should be said that Wales were extremely unlucky not to win after leading by one goal at the interval.

Wales were weakened through the refusal of English clubs to release their best players, but were the more impressive team of the two. Their forwards were clever but good work was spoiled by weak shooting.

The Irish defence excelled against a strong attack. Grover, the Welsh centre-forward, was outstanding, but missed a chance to score in the opening minute. However, he atoned for his lapse in the fifth minute, when he netted while the defenders were appealing for offside.

After the resumption Ireland played with determination. The Welsh defence was uncertain under severe pressure. St. Jones equalised ten minutes after the restart.

There was a gate of 20,000.

31 CORRECT RESULTS.

League football is now running more true to form and forecasters have a happier time of it. I was lucky enough to pick 31 results which I hope did somebody some good.

Tottenham remain unshaken on their pedestal and show neither the faltering of Stoke who lost heavily to a much improved Middlesbrough or the uncertainty of the Arsenal who again failed to bring off a coup at Highbury. This time they had very bad luck however, the visitors only goal being scored by N. W. Sidney, the Arsenal defender who accidentally tapped the ball through whilst Moss was hesitating in the goal-mouth. There was a groan from a great section of the 55,000 people when the ball rolled over the line.

In defeating West Bromwich Albion, the Spurs deprived that ambitious club of its unbeaten home record and gained a two points lead at the head of the table.

That veteran favourite, J. Smith was responsible for Huddersfield's great victory over Everton at Goodison Park and enabled his club to draw level with Arsenal in the second position.

Reading's task at Southampton was difficult enough in any event and with injuries incapacitating temporarily several players, they did well to lose by so small a margin.

READING'S FIRST AWAY.

Bury improved themselves at the leader's cost, the Hammers scoring one in reply to a brace. The United showed good form at Craven Cottage, taking the points with two goals to which Fulham could find no reply.

Reading and Watford brought off the best performances in the Southern section, the first-named drawing up to third place, with a win at Northampton and the second taking another step from the bottom at Torquay's expense. The invincible Chesterfield damped Rotherham's ardour by a 3-1 win whilst Stockport ran wild to hit the inside of the net nine times against Southport. Tranmere were not expected to win at York and they slipped down a place in the table.

Motherwell are still scraping home by the odd goal and they brought off an away victory against Dundee by 2-1 which leaves their supremacy still practically unchallenged. Rangers have settled down to serious football and will be on their heels at the first slip I think.

TACTICS AT FAULT

football text-book. Beltrac played quite a useful part in holding up the opposing forwards, though it struck me he was not so effective after he had discarded his beret. These idiosyncrasies such as wearing berets, chewing gum; playing with shirt sleeves rolled up or left hanging down have an astonishing psychological influence.

Borotra wouldn't think of going onto the court without his beret, and I.D. Rumjahn always gives the impression of losing form when he discards his.

Anyhow, Beltrac's best work was performed during the first twenty minutes. After that time he threw away his skull cap.

The Saints were certainly solid in defence. Gosano, constantly jumping in, where perhaps, angels would have feared to tread, repeatedly spilt the Artillery movements.

Gomes, less burdened because the ball was not half so much over his side of the field, was steady and covered Gosano in reliable style.

Behind these two was Marques, who still has claims to being the best goalkeeper in the league. He was blameless for the goals which were scored against him, and more than once

FRIENDLY CRICKET.

Malayan Interporters In Action.

GILL IMPRESSIVE.

Two Malayan Interporters were seen in action in the friendly cricket match between the Indian R. C. and the University at Pokfulam on Saturday which resulted in a draw. They were W. O. Jonklaus and B. S. Gill, who both made a good impression.

Gill played for the Indians, and was undefeated with 38 runs when the innings was declared closed at 141 for 6 wickets. F. D. Pereira reached the boundary on four occasions in making 18, after which he retired, and A. H. Rumjahn played steadily for 10.

At close of play the University had lost nine wickets for 102 runs, towards which Jonklaus contributed 25 and E. L. Gosano 29. Jonklaus showed himself to be a very hard hitter, and on three occasions lifted A. R. Minu's bowling out of the ground. He was completely at sea when facing Pereira, and was eventually bowled by that bowler. Pereira claimed three wickets for 14 runs, and A. K. Ismail, the I. R. C. left-hander, captured four wickets for 14 runs. Ismail bowled very well indeed, and kept a good length.

The Kowloon Cricket Club engaged the Royal Navy in a friendly at King's Park, and were defeated by seven wickets, after declaring their innings closed at 136 runs for nine wickets.

The principal scorers for Kowloon were Lt. C. G. Garthwaite (28), N. A. E. MacKay (23) and A. T. Lay (22). Richards captured 6 wickets for 28 runs.

The Navy totalled 136 runs for four wickets, Lt. Eaden being top scorer with 42 runs not out, and Lt.-Cdr. Carver claiming 36. Lt. Larkin 33 runs.

Hongkong Club v. Medical Corps. The Hongkong Cricket Club second eleven gained an easy victory over the Royal Army Medical Corps at Sockunpo, winning by 112 runs. The Club totalled 157 runs for seven wickets, and declared. A. K. MacKenzie contributing 23 and R. S. W. Patterson 57 runs. The military side were dismissed for 45. A. D. Lawson doing the damage with six wickets for 10, and E. Smith claiming four wickets for 21.

Kowloon Juniors v. Civil Service. The Kowloon Cricket Club second eleven played a drawn match with the Civil Service on their own ground. The Civil Servants were dismissed for 110 runs, W. Hyde taking four wickets for 24. J. F. McGowan was the chief scorer with 30.

Kowloon scored 116 for five wickets when stumps were drawn. S. Jax was undefeated with 57, and D. S. Green followed with 35. R. A. J. Simpson captured four wickets for 22.

St. Joseph's v. Recreio. At King's Park, the Club do Recreio defeated St. Joseph's College by 92 runs. Recreio batted first and scored 103 runs for eight wickets, before declaring. W. A. Road scored 29 and E. Soares 35. The Josephians were dismissed for only 11, of which C. Amory scored six. P. M. N. da Silva captured three wickets for seven and C. L. Lopes six wickets for four.

FIRST OF SEASON.

Don Bradman Scores Double Century At Brisbane.

Brisbane, Nov. 4. Don Bradman, the world cricket record holder, scored 200 runs in his first innings of the season when playing for New South Wales against Queensland in Sheffield Shield match here.

Bradman played scintillating cricket and was at the crease for 184 minutes in compiling his runs which included 26 boundary hits.—Reuter.

M.C.C. WIN MATCH.

Lahore, Nov. 5. The M.C.C. tourists defeated Northern India to-day by an innings and 135 runs.

Northern India scored only 53 in their first knock, Clark taking four for seven and Marriott four for 20. In their second stand, the Indian eleven scored 58, Marriott taking three for 29 and Langridge three for 12. Human took two wickets for no runs.

The M. C. C. replied with 249 for 7. Mitchell scored 54 and Townsend 50.—Reuter.

cleared from very threatening situations.

Against the Play

Leonard gave the Saints the lead with a glorious shot, but the Artillery were the quicker to settle down to concerted effort, and after Green-shields had hit the cross bar with Marques beaten to the wide, and had sent the goalkeeper sprawling across the line after a ball which had just risen the upright, Seal, crowned a useful piece of work on the wing with a perfect angle shot which found no answer from Marques.

The Artillery should have led at the interval instead of sharing two goals.

It was more or less against the run of the play that St. Joseph's took the lead again, and increased it to 3-1 before Seal scrambled home the Gunners' second goal.

But Ward made certain of the issue, catching the Artillery vanguard napping and going through to net his second and the Saints' fourth goal.

OUR BOWLING IS O.K.

AND BATTING NOT SO BAD

"GOOD LUCK" TO OWEN HUGHES

(By R. Abbit).

As I have not been in a position to see our local players in action so far this season, I am obliged to confine myself to generalities and to such information as I have obtained from those who are qualified to criticise.

One thing I notice particularly. The general opinion seems to be that it is the best team that could have been chosen. There are of course those who would not agree to this. But taking it by and large I have heard far less adverse criticism this year than for good many years past. This must be very gratifying to those gentlemen who took on the arduous post of selectors.

NOTABLE ABSENTEES.

These are of course several names that, at first view, one would however expect to find in the team which do not appear. I had expected to find Tom Hayward captaining the side but I understand he has not yet recovered his old form. I never thought that he did so last year, after he had been laid aside by illness for some time.

The two other names that particularly occur to me are those of Pereira and Burnett, but I gather that they both have failed to find their true form with the ball this year. It is bad luck, but there are few, if any, cricketers who do not get their bad patches.

Besides the three already mentioned players I notice that both E. J. R. Mitchell and A. C. Beck have just returned to the Colony. Neither could expect to find a place in the first team, and to be honest I think Mitchell will always have to play himself into the team, unless he plays as skipper, when his unfailing optimism and superb confidence can easily turn a team of ferrets into a cricket eleven.

The case of Beck is more unfortunate. He bowled brilliantly at Home for the Hongkong Nomads, but you can hardly pick him on absolutely no play. Actually the team was selected before the ship arrived in the Colony. I am not, however, of opinion that we can see him in Malaya. If we present team defeat Malaya, comfortably we shall not. But if not, I fancy he may be chosen as a fast bowler, for frankly our present team has not one. But more of this later—and the wicket is going to come into the question a lot.

THE TEAM AND THE WICKET.

As I write these notes on Sunday night it is raining like the next letter to K. My room looks over the cricket ground and I can assure my readers that I can see a large patch of standing water in the middle of the ground.

Now, our ground recovers amazingly rapidly—we should have a better wicket if it did not. But even if it is fit for play on Monday morning, as it very well may be, the wicket is going to be wet. And that is not going to help us at all. Our batsmen are used to fast dry wickets and the slow turners are rather unusual. And, at the same time, there are certain bowlers here who feel completely lost if they cannot make it fizz past the batsman's eyebrows two or three times an over at least.

And so, if one is to discuss the team in advance—and this article will probably appear before very much cricket has been played—one must do so in relation to a cricket definitely slower than the ordinary.

A TEAM OF BOWLERS?

I have gathered that the general opinion is that we have a very fine, if not varied, bowling side. At any rate, we have quite a lot of bowlers in the side, and as bowlers are human (very human, sometimes) the more you have the more you are likely to produce one or two "on their day".

Now that it is raining A. R. Minu jumps into even more prominence than before. He is the only real slow bowler on the side, and with a glove pot wicket he might well run through any team.

There are two other slow merchants H. Owen Hughes and T. A. Pearce. As changes they may be most officious, but I most sincerely hope they will be used only for an over or two at a time—little and often.

A. C. Hamilton is in my opinion the pick of our attack, and I happen to know after the last Interport down here Donald Leach definitely said that he was our best bowler. Goodwin has apparently staged a come back, and on his day there is no better fast-medium bowler. His favourite wicket however is a hard one with most of the grass off I doubt very much if he will be effective on a rain damaged patch until the sun has got well on it.

I really know nothing about Red-

Bertie Guest Returns To Hockey

PLAYS FINE GAME FOR SAINTS

A. E. P. Guest returned to active hockey yesterday morning and played a great skipper's game at centre-half for the St. Andrew's Club against the Kowloon Indians Tennis Club in a friendly hockey match on the I.K.S.R.A. ground. The Saints won by three goals to nil, the score at half-time being blank.

Rain fell during the game but no stop was made. Naidu played a good defence game at back for the Indians, while Fred Broadbridge was again steady at right back. The Saints forward line combined better in the second half when Eric Fincher found the net twice and Bliss twice. G. A. White did good work on the right wing showing marked improvement.

C.B.A. WIN AGAIN.

In a friendly hockey fixture played on the home ground, King's Park yesterday morning the C.B.A. defeated the German Club by three goals to nil. C. C. Francis was the marksman on all three occasions.

EQUALS OLD MARK.

Huge Crowd Watches Richards' Ride.

A COINCIDENCE.

London, Nov. 5. A tremendously enthusiastic crowd saw Gordon Richards ride his 24th winner of the season to-day.

The dense throng at Hurst Park races may have been disappointed, for everyone expected Richards to break the record of Fred Archer, which has stood for fifty years. Richards only equalled it, though he had six mounts. He rode only one winner.

Richards resumes his riding at Liverpool on November 11, however, and by a strange coincidence may establish the new season's record on that day, the forty-seventh anniversary of Archer's death. He needs one winner at Liverpool to set a well-nigh unbeatable mark.—Reuter.

mond, but the Straits team seem to know all about him, and so we lose the advantage of surprise, which is such a feature in these games. Gard-wait has a knack of rising to the occasion, but he seemed very ineffective on matting at King's Park on Saturday and I prefer to think of him as a bat. Finally there is Duckitt, who on his day is quite capable of getting a quick wicket or two. Here again it will require the quick eye of a skilful Captain to see if it is one of the days he should, or should not, bowl.

THE BATTING.

The critics who have put us down as a side of much bowling—but of little variety there in—have apparently been quite satisfied with our batting.

I wish I felt that we were worth an average of two hundred runs per innings. A rude friend of mine said "We have a lot of batting but most of it is bad. Let me at once say I don't agree with him. We have a lot of bats who may come off—so many, in fact, that the batting is that at least two of them do come off."

I rather imagine the order will be Duckitt, Fincher, Pearce, Morgan Garthwaite, Hamilton and Owen Hughes. After that it depends how she goes. But in case of a collapse either Frank Goodwin or Minu can knock the stuffing out of a bowler with the tail up. Duckney too, is a very steady bat who used to go in a great deal higher in Shanghai than he does here. On the whole I think that we have not so much to worry about on the batting side.

THE POOR OLD SKIPPER.

There is one final point I should like to make. It is no joke captaining a side under any circumstances. When one has to do it under unusual conditions of weather or wicket we could even more difficult.

Nothing is easier than to criticise from the pavilion. Nothing is more difficult than to realize all the factors that are operated on the field of the Captain, at the course which lead him to take the course of action about which your pavilion cricket critic froths! Leave him alone.

So long as a skipper can keep his temper and his sense of humour he will hold his team together. For this is the secret of Captaincy. Every one makes mistakes in policy (every government!) but the one thing a captain has to do is to get the best out of his team.

I wish Owen Hughes the very best of fortune with his side.

PRIZE GIVING DAY.

Craigengower's Many Successes.

A BOWLS MATCH.

The Craigengower Cricket Club was on fete yesterday afternoon, when the closing of a successful season's activities culminated with a Lawn Bowls match between Bald Heads and Non Bald Heads, and the presentation of prizes.

The Club was gaily decked with flags for the occasion. A dance orchestra was in attendance during the evening and dancing was indulged in until about 8 p.m.

Several members and guests arrived to see the bowls match, which, after an interesting struggle, was won by the Non Bald Heads by 97 shots to 89.

The prizes were distributed by Mrs. B. W. Bradbury, wife of the President of the Club. Prior to the distribution Mr. Bradbury said that they had a very wonderful season. Speaking of a number of twenty years' standing, he did not think that the Club had enjoyed such a successful season in that period. They had won the Second Division Cricket Shield, a thing which the Club had not done for many years. The last time they had won the Cricket championship was in 1912.

With regard to Lawn bowls, they had perhaps done not quite so well, but very nearly. Last year both their teams had won the League, and this season he was glad to say the second team had managed to do it again. The first team did not win, but gave the winners a good fight. Their first team had, however, won the shield outright three years in succession, and the second team now had two wins in succession. He hoped they would do it again next year (Applause).

With regard to the Tennis, he thought they were doing better, and Mr. Howard seemed to be pulling the team together quite well. In conclusion Mr. Bradbury thanked the ladies of the Club for the work they had accomplished in the interest of the Club.

TAIKOO'S AT HOME.

Quarry Bay Club Officially Closes Their Season.

The Taikeo R. C. officially brought their bowls activities to a close on Saturday when the members were "At Home" to friends. As has been customary ladies participated in the game of bowls which marked the occasion.

At the end of the game the prizes won during the season were distributed by Mrs. K. E. Greig, who later was presented with a bouquet by Miss E. Keown.

Commenting on the progress bowls was making in the Colony, Mr. J. Russell, President of the Hongkong Lawn Bowls Association said that he would like to see competitions among local bowlers of the Colony.

The following were the scores of the afternoon's games:
K. E. Greig, Mrs. Polson, D. B. Bone and W. Wotherspoon ("A" team) lost to Kinghorn, Mrs. Stewart, J. B. Chapman and J. Russell 17-19.
R. Wright, Mrs. Summers, J. A. Watson and N. Drummond ("A" team) lost to Greenwood, Mrs. Cunningham, A. MacFarlane and R. C. Wallace 9-10.

J. Wald, Mrs. Chalmers, W. Cunningham and R. Keown ("A" team) drew with S. J. Pollock, Mrs. Whyte, T. R. Stainton and G. H. Stewart 15-16.

R. Gray, Mrs. MacFarlane, D. Peoples and J. Whyte ("A" team) lost to A. McArthur, W. Brown and H. McKechnie 14-25.

"A" team lost to "D" team by 55-78.

Today's Contract Problem

WHAT should the final contract be on the following hand:

North: ♠ Q 8 6 3 ♥ A 10 6
♦ A 3 ♣ A Q
East: ♠ A 10 ♥ Q 8 7 4
♦ J 7 6 4 ♣ 8 5 3
South: ♠ K 5 4 ♥ K J 10
♦ K 5 3 ♣ J 10 7 2
West: ♠ J 7 2 ♥ 5 3 2
♦ 10 8 ♣ K 9 6 4
Solution in next issue. 11

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

West can hardly be criticized for doubling a five diamond contract on the following problem hand. However Mr. John Rau, youngest player ever to win a national championship, was successful in making the contract.

The Bidding

South bid one heart. West passed and North bid two diamonds. South bid three clubs. North bid three no trump and South bid four clubs. North bid four diamonds and South went to five diamonds. West doubled and Mr. Rau in the North doubled.

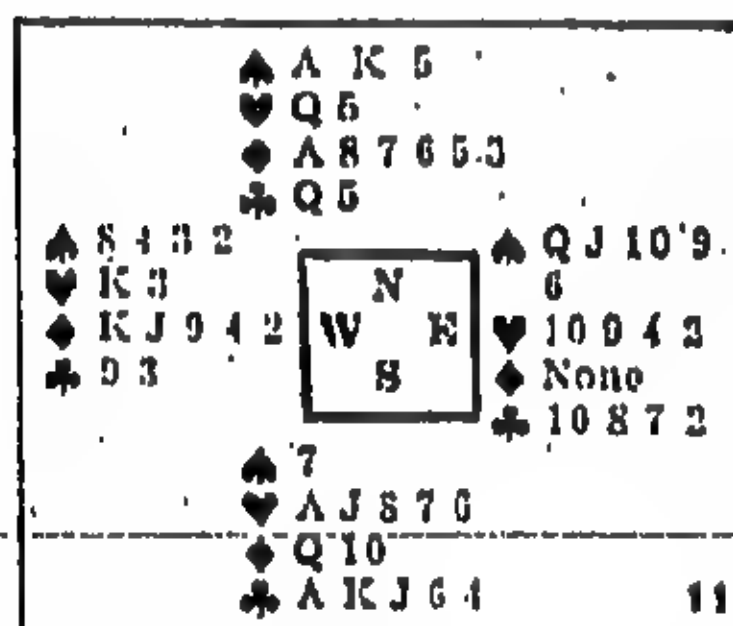

The Play

The opening lead was the queen of spades, which Mr. Rau won with the ace. He immediately led the queen of clubs and followed with the five of clubs, winning in dummy with the jack.

The ace of clubs was played and West trumped with the deuce of diamonds. North over-trumped with the three of diamonds and then led the five of spades, trumping in dummy with the ten of diamonds.

The king of clubs was then led and this time West trumped with the nine of diamonds. Mr. Rau in the North over-trumped with the ace of diamonds and then led the five of diamonds which West won with the king. West returned a spade, North winning with the eight of diamonds which West won with the jack.

West returned another spade which Mr. Rau in the North trumped with the six of diamonds, after which he led the seven spot, picking up West's last trump. He then led a small heart, won in dummy with the ace and discarded his queen of hearts on the good six of clubs.

ty Rax", which comes to the King's Theatre on Wednesday. The film is said to afford McLaughlin the most comical role of his career, far surpassing "The Cock-Eyed World" and "What Price Glory" in its farcical possibilities.

Greta Nissen, who has the role of a platinum blonde sweetie in "Rackety Rax", shares honours in the comedy scenes with Nell O'Day, from the musical comedy stage. Marjorie Beebe as a racketeer's battling wife and Esther Howard as a "fixer-lady" or muscle-inner's go-between, both have parts which are reported as having plenty of opportunity for laughter.

The comedians in "Rackety Rax" are Arthur Pierson as a sporting page press-agent; Allen Dinchart, as a sanctimonious college professor and underworld lawyer-fixer; Allen Jenkins; Vince Barnett, Hollywood's cleverest "ribber"; Stanley Fields, Ivan Linow, Ward and John Keyes, the latter in real life "The Mayor of Chinatown" in New York.

OBITUARY

SIR HENRY MERRICK LAWSON

London, Nov. 5.
The death is announced of
Lieut.-General Sir Henry Merrick
Lawson, at the age of 74 years.
Sir Henry has had a distinguished military career. He saw service in Egypt and South Africa, and since 1900 had filled numerous administrative and command appointments.—Our Own Correspondent.

Sir Henry was born in Dublin, and was the fourth son of the late
Rt. Hon. James A. Lawson, Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench,
Ireland. In 1912 he married the Countess of Lathom, C.B.E., daughter of the fifth Earl of Radnor and widow of the second Earl of Lathom. She died in 1931.

Educated at Cheltenham College and the Royal Military Academy,
Woolwich, Sir Henry joined the Army as a lieutenant in the Royal Engineers in 1877. He served in the Suakin Expedition in 1884 and in the following year in the Nile Expedition with the brevet of Major. Three years later he was with the Egyptian Army in the Soudan Campaign and was under severely wounded. From 1899 until 1902 he served in the South African War, and was made A.D.C. to His Majesty the King. Up to the end of the War he held staff appointments as D.A.A.G., Dublin
District, D.A.Q.M.G., at Army
Headquarters as well as being Assistant-Adjutant-General, Deputy-Adjutant-General and later
Brigadier-General on the staff in South Africa. He was mentioned in despatches and awarded the Queen's Medal with four clasps.
He was also invested with the Order of Companion of the Bath.

From 1904 until 1906 he was Director of Movements and Quar-terings at the War Office and in the latter year took over the command of the 18th. Infantry

Brigade stationed in Dublin. The following year he was appointed Major-General in Charge of Administration, Aldershot Command.
This appointment he held for three years and from then until 1914 commanded the 2nd. Division.
During the first year of the Great War he was Lieut.-Governor of Guernsey and Alderney, and the following year was O.C. Northern Command. His next appointment was that of Inspector General of Communications in Italy, a post he relinquished in 1918. Three years later he retired on pay.

FIRE AT CROWD

INDIAN CONSTABLE TELLS OF ATTACK

Some excitement was caused in Upper Lascar Road, the Paddy's
Market area, yesterday morning when an Indian constable is alleged to have been attacked by an unruly crowd after he had made an arrest, drawn his revolver and fired a shot which struck a man in the right heel. The Constable involved was Imam Ali Shan, I.P.C.
B331.

The trouble originated when the constable arrested a woman named Lai Nui, who was carrying three tin alleged to have contained Chinese wine. Several supporters of the woman then made as if to attack the constable, and he was compelled to fire for his own safety.

A man named Lam Lin was hit in the right heel, the bullet entering the Chinese shoe he was wearing, and causing a superficial wound, which proved very painful.
The arrested woman was taken to the charge room of the Central Police Station, and was followed by the man, Lam Lin, who limped in supported by an elderly man.

Reports were made, the Police constable alleging that when he tried to arrest the woman he had been pelted with stones, several of which struck him. Marks were visible on the back of his shirt and on the leather revolver holster he carried.

The injured man was taken to the Government Civil Hospital in an ambulance, and the matter is being investigated.

The woman will be charged today with resisting arrest.

Third International.
He was educated in America and fled there, about fifteen years ago, when prosecution followed his work at labour organisation.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

A Setting to Whet Lagging Appetites

Nothing whets lagging appetites so much as food served out of doors. When your family refuses to eat these hot days, try serving a few al-fresco meals. Don't take your very best china Have simple furniture that won't get ruined by rain. Tablecloths of some olecloth variety are best. They won't show spots and they save laundry. You simply wipe them off with a damp cloth.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

There is much to be said in favour of lines on the face of a woman over thirty five. And much to be said against them if she is younger.

Lines and wrinkles naturally
come with maturity and it is practically impossible to prevent all of them. Nor would you want to. A few lines on the face of an older woman add a lot of character and interest to her face. Some of the most beautiful older women in the world have many fine laugh lines around their eyes and the inevitable vertical lines around their mouths. One cannot imagine them being beautiful without those lines.

But when it comes to the younger girl, lines and wrinkles are an entirely different matter. You should take steps to prevent them while your skin is still firm and young.

There are nourishing creams
for the dry skin. Dryness is one of the most prevalent causes of premature lines.

Why not shop around a bit for reliable nourishing and tissue creams? When you find one, plan to use it every night after you have cleaned your face. Leave it on all night occasionally.

Don't overlook the importance of muscle oils for the lines around your eyes. The oil should be warmed slightly, patted on the spots where lines may appear and
left on all night.

SIMPLICITY and charm, as usual, distinguish this presentation of the Chic twins. Perhaps you would prefer this model in a pastel shade of alaphanous chiffon. In any event, you can procure a pattern in any of six sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 (with corresponding bust measurements of 33½, 35, 36½ and 38) and 40 and 42. Size 18 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material. For trimming, the neck and bow require 1¼ yards, and the belt and bow 2¼ yards.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

A Summer Mystery BY J. JEFFERSON FARJEON

CHAPTER XVIII.

"Meanwhile, at the Mermade—"

A minute later Leonard and Napoleon were leaning over the side of the wreck, hailing the occupants of the boat.

"Hallo there!" cried Leonard. "Hallo!" sang back Mr. Griddle.

"Are you all right?" "Rather! Haven't a ripple! I'm," replied Napoleon. "But, what's brought you along?"

"We heard a shot," Jessica Fyne's voice called, anxiously. "Are you sure no one's hurt?"

"There you are!" exclaimed Napoleon triumphantly to Leonard. "You see, I do the right thing by instinct!" Then, turning towards the boat again, he said, "No, no one's hurt."

"Beastly shame!" It was Beryl's voice now. "We've brought along such a perfectly lovely First Aid set!"

"Do you mean to say you heard the shot from the hotel?" asked Leonard, as the boat drew alongside.

"If I didn't," she said, responded Beryl, glancing at Jessica. "If people will sit by open windows late at night, instead of going properly to sleep, they're bound to hear unpleasant sounds. Particularly if the wind's in the right direction. But what's happened? Do tell us! We've had an awful scare. You don't mean to say, Nappy—"

"Oh! Oh, I do, I do," jerked Napoleon. "Call me names, if you like, but I did it to win five shillings. Yes, I expect I was a fearful ass, but I swore I'd show the world what a hero I could be and got the limelight turned on me for once!"

"But the limelight seems to be on two of you," said Jessica, looking at Leonard.

"Yes—I expect I'm only half a hero, really," returned Napoleon, "but half a hero's better than none. I didn't know where to find a blessed boat, and I asked Sefton to help me. When we found the boat, I refused to back out, and he puered over head. 'Is that you, Morley?' I rather hoped No. 4 would be Guy. I like spot cash. Where is Guy? Thought he'd have joined the merry party."

No one replied for a moment. Then Beryl answered, seriously.

"I don't know where Guy is, Nappy. We—we hoped we'd find him here."

"Good Lord!" murmured Napoleon, and looked at Leonard. "Do you mean that your brother isn't in his room?" queried Leonard, quietly.

"No, he's not there, Mr. Sefton," responded Beryl. "When Miss Fyne came to my room—after hearing the shot, you know—I decided to rout up Guy first. You see, we thought he could then rout up you, if necessary. But Guy wasn't there. So we tried your room—and you weren't there. And then we tried yours, Nappy—and you weren't there."

"I guessed I wasn't," murmured Napoleon.

"I believe I was next on the list of eligibles," interposed Valentine Morley. "By the time they'd woken me, the noise had roused Mr. Griddle, also, so we thought we'd better make up a little party and come along to see what the trouble was. And we're still waiting to know. What was that shot? And where's your boat? Round the other side?"

"No—our boat's been taken," answered Leonard, slowly. "We found someone on board here—"

"What's that?" cried Mr. Griddle sharply. "You found someone on board, you say?"

"Yes. A sort of lunatic, I reckon. Anyway, while we were playing hide and seek with him, he slipped off in our boat, and left us marooned. Truelove fired into the water, to scare him, and got a little of his own back—and that's the shot you heard, Miss Fyne."

"It's horrible!" exclaimed Jessica, with a shudder. "Who could it have been? I noticed a light from the wreck once, I thought, and that was one reason why I guessed where the shot came from."

"And I helped the guess, by recalling that idiotic bot you made with my young brother, Nappy," added Beryl. "We never thought it was serious, though. I'm sure Guy didn't, either. Couldn't believe you'd have the madness—or the courage—to do it."

"There's one thing I don't understand," observed Morley. "You say the other chap went off in your boat. But surely he had a boat of his own? Where is it?"

"Nowhere," answered Leonard. "How he got on the wreck is one of the various mysteries we seem to be up against."

"Perhaps you and I aren't the only swimming enthusiasts in the neighbourhood, Mr. Sefton?" suggested Beryl Haines.

"My hat!" cried Napoleon, suddenly. "It's Daisy!"

"Eyes were directed towards him rather anxiously. His exclamation did not appear to fit into the conversation. But Leonard understood it, and followed Napoleon's gaze.

"By Jove—it is Daisy!" he murmured.

"Where's Daisy?" asked Beryl. "Is she a rival?"

"You're sitting in her," responded Napoleon.

"If you mean this is a Daisy boat, I don't agree—"

"Just the same, it is a Daisy boat, because that's her name!" retorted Napoleon. "Where the deuce did you pick her up? That's the boat we rowed across in—and the boat our lunatic went away!"

The eyes staring up from below grew wide in astonishment. Beryl gave a little shudder, and Valentine Morley jerked his head round suddenly at nothing.

"We found it on the beach at Craydon," said Jessica, after a short silence.

"A little fishing community about half-a-mile from your hotel?" asked Leonard.

"Yes. Do you know it?"

"Yes. That's where we found the boat, too." "I knew we'd find a boat there, so we went there at once, and we took this boat because it was on the edge of the water. Mr. Griddle said he believed someone had lately used it, but we didn't meet anybody, and as we didn't want to waste time, we just got in and pushed off."

"That little boat will get giddy," commented Leonard. "It's working overtime. But you know, you and Miss Haines shouldn't have come—"

"We insisted," retorted Beryl, with a smile. "We were so anxious about our two darling darlings. We refused to be left behind."

"After hearing that shot, did you think of telephoning to the police?" asked Leonard.

He looked at Jessica, and she looked back at him.

"I did," she said, slowly. "It seemed to me the best thing to do—in the new circumstances."

"I agree. Perhaps, we ought—but never mind that now. You got on to them?"

"No, we only tried to," interposed Mr. Griddle, grimly. "We couldn't."

"Why not?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "Because everybody's mad to-night. Someone had cut the wires."

Again, a short silence fell upon the company. The cutting of the telephone wires was unpleasantly significant.

"What about getting back?" suggested Morley.

"I'm sure I'm ready," answered Mr. Griddle, almost querulously. "But, you mentioned 'one of the mysteries,' Mr. Sefton. Have you found any more on your wreck?"

"We've found a dead man," replied Napoleon, ingenuously. "He's here now."

The information caused some commotion down in the little boat, while Leonard, for the first time, felt really angry with Napoleon Truelove.

"Why blurt it out like that?" he exclaimed.

The anger passed the next moment, however. Napoleon was genuinely contrite.

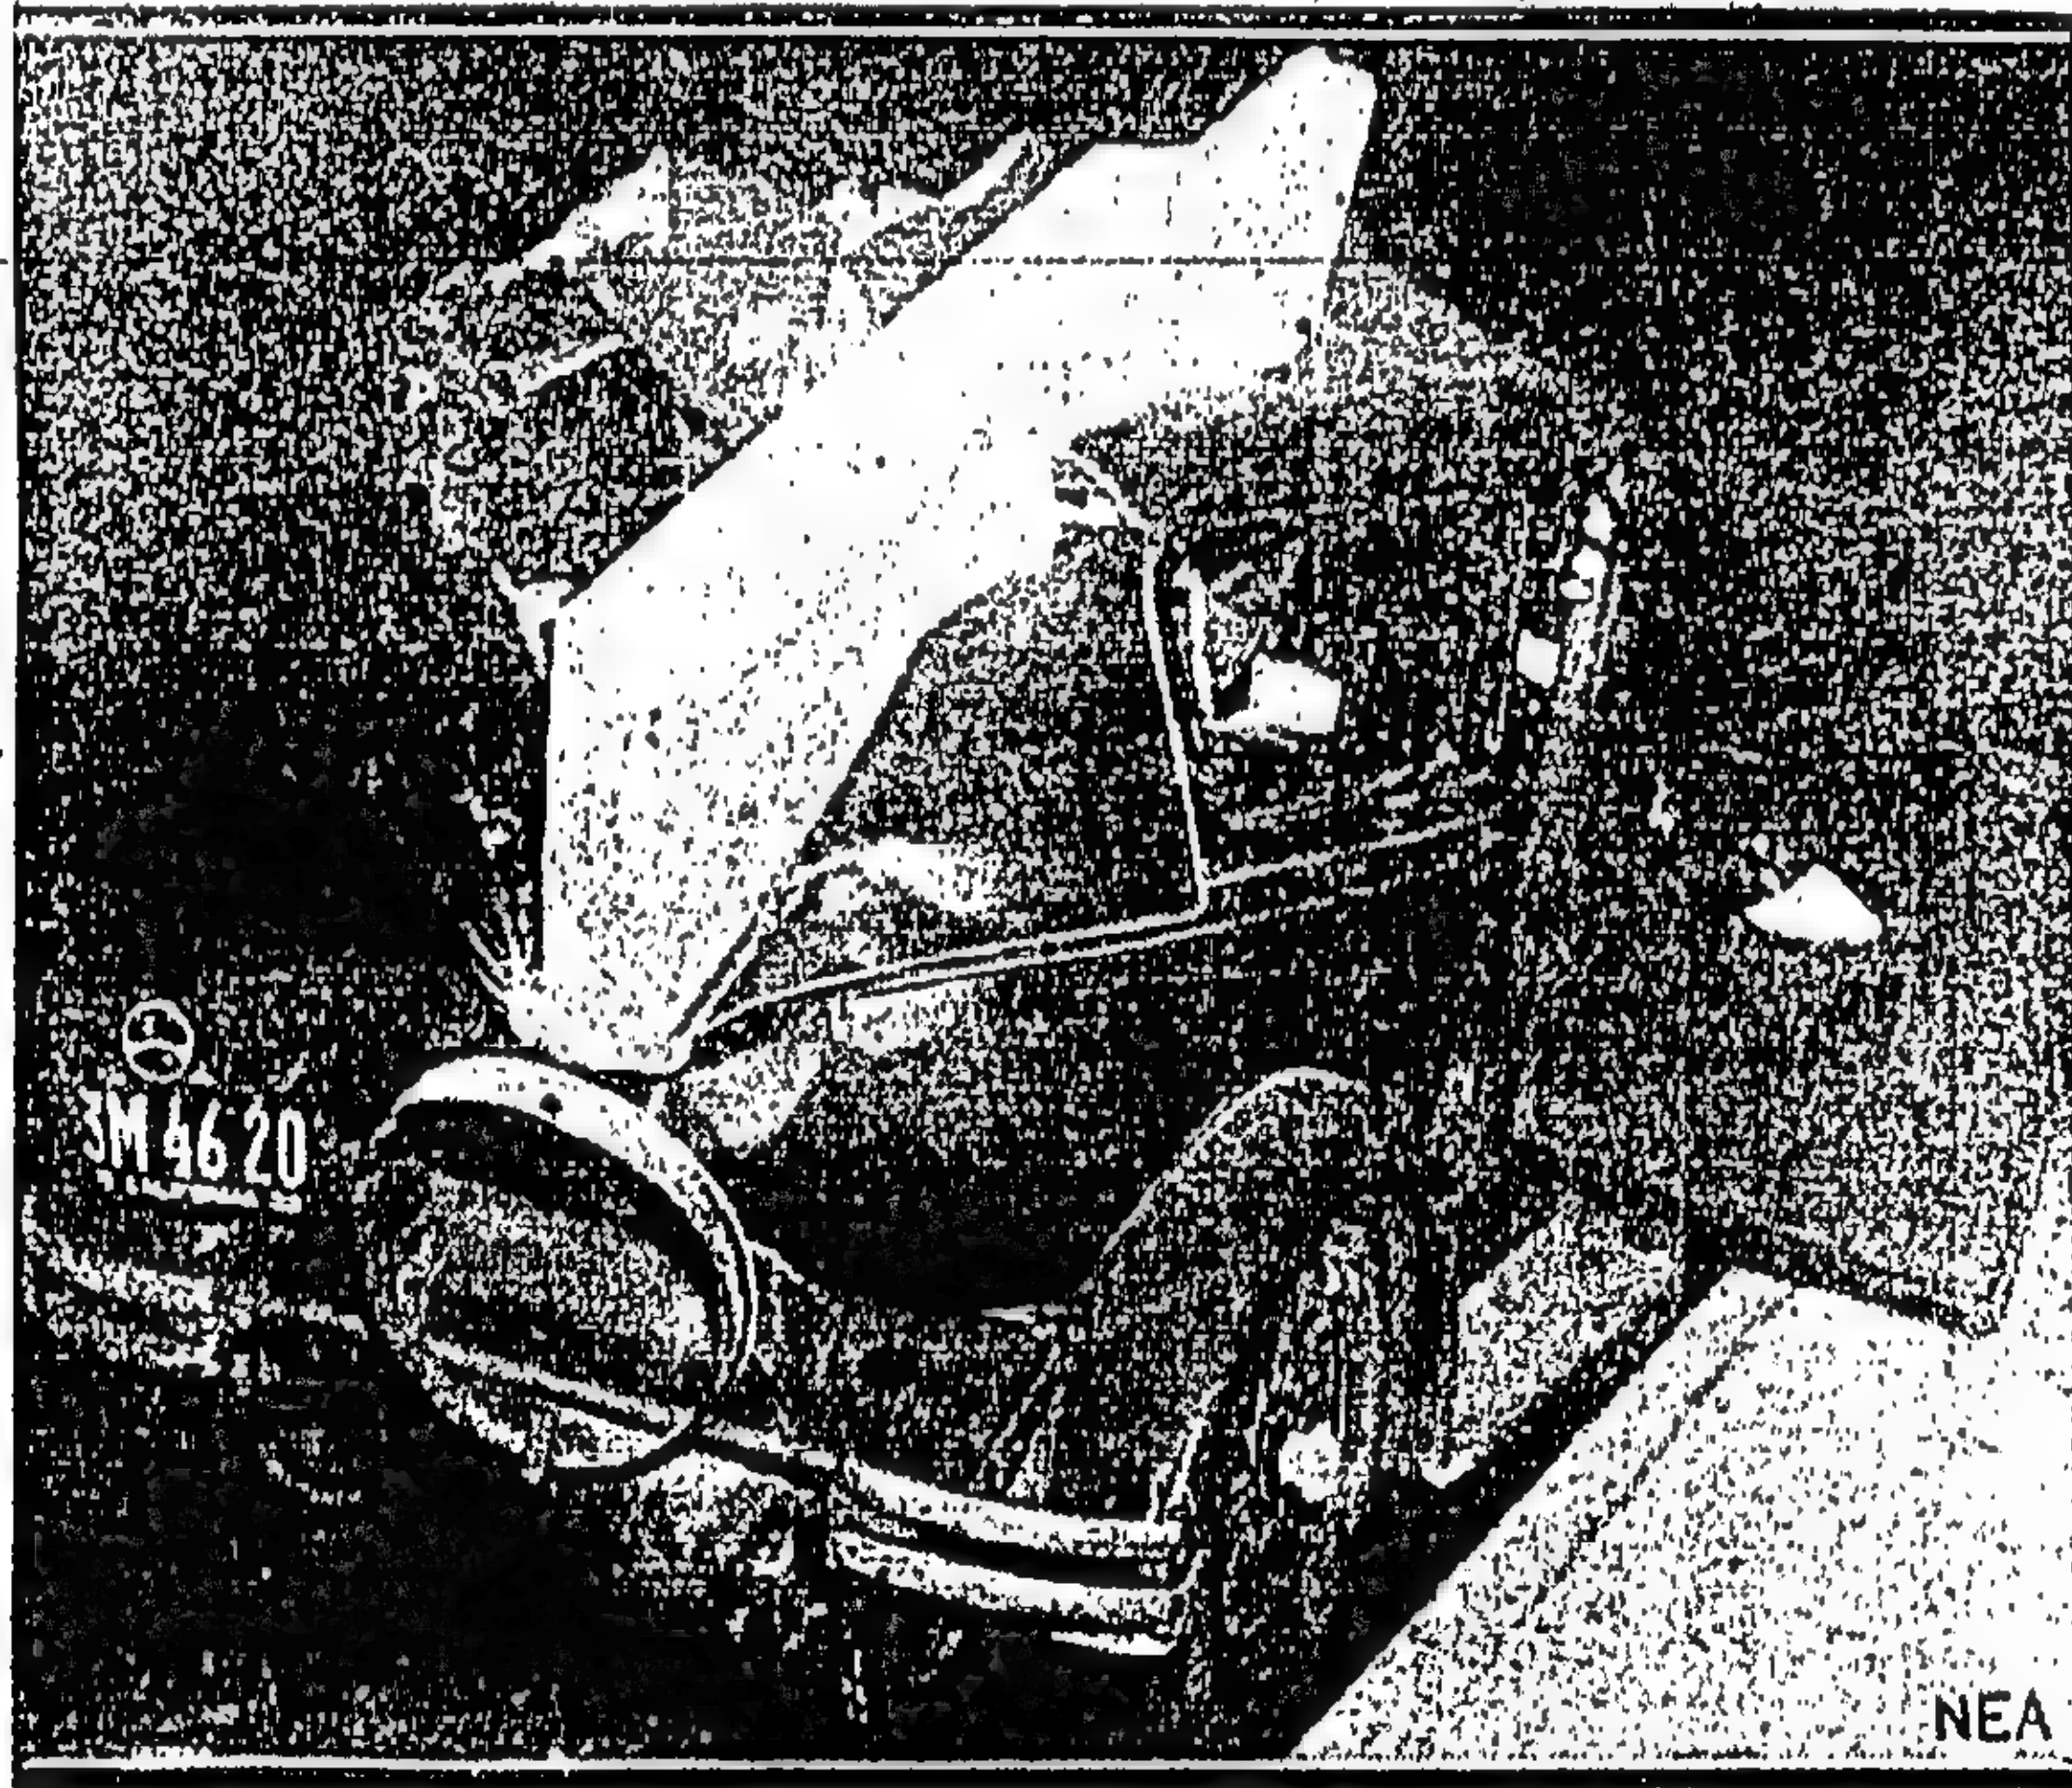

"I am an ass," he murmured, penitently. "But the fact is I'm getting so hardened—"

"A dead man?" chimed in Mr. Griddle, excitedly. "Good heavens! What's behind all this?—Morley, I think we'd better get on board."

"Not both of you," replied Leonard. "One of you must stay in the boat. No, it's no one you know, Miss Fyne," he added quickly, as he caught her expression. "Don't worry."

Despite his age, Mr. Griddle swung himself up to the deck, and demanded to be taken to the place

A BROKEN DOWN SYSTEM.
This is a condition (or disease) to which many names are given but few really understand. It is simply weakness—break down as it were, of the vital forces that sustain the system. No matter what may be its cause (they are almost innumerable), its symptoms are much the same: the more prominent being sleeplessness, sense of prostration or weakness, depression of spirits and want of energy for all the ordinary affairs of life. Now, what alone is essential in all such cases is increased vitality—vitality, vitality and energy to throw off these morbid feelings, and as night succeeds the day this may be more certainly secured by a course of THE NEW FRENCH REMEDY, THERAPION No. 3 than by any other known combination. So surely as it is taken in accordance with the printed directions will the shattered health be restored to its former vigour.
This preparation is suitable for all ages, constitutions and conditions, in either sex; and it is difficult to imagine a disease of debility whose main feature is weakness, that will not be speedily and permanently overcome by this powerful remedy. It is a medicine of humanity, for it relieves suffering and restores health. It is a medicine of humanity, for it relieves suffering and restores health. It is a medicine of humanity, for it relieves suffering and restores health.

HONGKONG TELEPHONE COMPANY, LIMITED.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that an Extraordinary General Meeting of the above Company will be held at the Board Room of the Company, Exchange Building, (Second floor), Des Voeux Road Central, Victoria, Hongkong, on Tuesday, the 28th day of November, 1933, at 12 Noon when the subjoined Resolutions will be proposed as Special Resolutions, viz:—

- (1) That the present authorised Capital of the Company of $5,000,000 divided into 500,000 shares (hereinafter referred to as "old shares") of the nominal value of $10 each, the whole of which have been issued, be increased to $7,500,000 by the creation of 250,000 new shares of the nominal value of $10 each ranking as for dividend as hereinafter mentioned and in all other respects pari passu with the old shares constituting the Company's present issued capital.
 - (2) That the said 250,000 new shares be offered forthwith in the first instance (in the proportion of one new share for every complete number of two old shares held by them respectively) to the members of the Company who on the 28th day of November 1933, are registered in the Company's Share Register as the holders of the said 500,000 old shares at par and so that on acceptance of such offer the sum of $2.50 per share shall be due and payable leaving the balance due on each of such said new shares of $7.50 per share to be called up at such time or times as the Directors of the Company shall see fit to make Calls in respect thereof and so that such new shares so accepted as aforesaid shall rank for dividend as from first day of January, 1934.
- And that such offer be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted by the member on behalf of himself or his nominee, will be deemed to be declined; and that the Directors be at liberty to fix such time or times and to extend such time or times to such date or dates, and upon such terms as they may think fit. And further that any of the said new 250,000 shares which shall not be taken by the Company's shareholders in manner aforesaid be disposed of in such manner at such time or times and upon such terms as the Company's Directors shall in their absolute discretion think fit.

- (3) That no shareholder shall be entitled to any offer of a fraction of an additional new share in respect of any old share held by such shareholder.

The Transfer Books of the Company will be closed from the 26th November 1933, to 28th November 1933, (both days inclusive) during which period no transfer of shares can be registered.

ITALIAN CONVENT BAZAAR.

ANNUAL APPEAL RECEIVED GRATIFYING SUPPORT

Bishop Henry Valtorta on Saturday opened the two days' Bazaar and Sale of Work held at the Italian Convent at Calne Road in aid of the orphans and invalids maintained by the Convent Sisters. In various districts of the Colony.

On arrival His Lordship was received by the Mother Superior Teresa Martinoli, and a unique Guard of Honour comprised of the matriculated students of the institution. His Lordship inspected the various stalls laid out with a large variety of articles in the Great Hall, and a number of side-shows and attractions giving to the function the gay aspect of a Fair. The occasion constituted practically the only assured means of assistance from the public for a very deserving cause, and there was a gratifying response to the appeal.

As an afterthought, while she was turning away, she said, "But I haven't told you my name—it is Foch."

WOMEN OF THE AIR.

Of the airwomen who have so gallantly girdled the earth, I was most impressed by Amelia Earhart. I met her after her first crossing of the Atlantic, on which she'd been so sick that most people would have vowed never again to leave the earth. She was pale to her lips and her voice was almost inaudible. Winston Churchill had just said that the people who did things could never make speeches, and that good speakers had never done anything worth talking about! It was, therefore, a difficult moment. Miss Earhart took charge of it in the most unassuming way. In two minutes, she had knocked all the bombast out of the occasion. In five, we might have been at a Board of Transport meeting. When we left, we all felt that if we hadn't already flown the Atlantic it was because we hadn't had time for it among other more important occupations.

"What are you going to do next?" I asked the unconcerned heroine. "Go home," she said. "I meant—are you going to try flying over here alone?"

"Yes, of course. I like flying, don't you?"

A BEVY OF ENGLISH.

Clair Sheridan, twony and vital and eager, adventurer in the grand manner, who has wandered over the earth collecting heads (sculpted) of Charlie Chaplin and Gandhi, Mussolini and Lenin and such like, reminds one of a great wind blowing headlong from strange countries. She makes one see pictures and dream dreams. Rebecca West is a scapell, used on the ulcers of mediocrity. She has a provocative mind. Her wit is as sharp as Damascus steel and it is sheathed in a voice of that same city's velvet.

Sybil Thordike, who, when she was playing Grand Guignol, told me she thought fear was the most enthralling of all emotions, has done great work for the theatre and Virginia Wolfe for contemporary literature. But we have lost Gertrude Bell, who helped to make the new nation of Iraq, and Doctor Scharrlieb, to whom all women are indebted because she made gynaecology a science, relieving childbirth of half its pain. We still have Madame David Niell, a French middle-aged bourgeoisie, greatest of living explorers. She is the only European who has reached Lhasa and left it undiscovered. For three years she lived as a Tibetan nun and for 11 years more she travelled in unknown country, in hourly danger of death by the most appalling torture; and she did all these stupendous journeys on her own, without money, or prestige, or help of any sort. When the map of the world is complete her name must be written across it with those of Burton and Livingstone, but what other living woman will go down to history?

LOCAL BRANCH OF R.A.M.C. ASSOCIATION FORMED

Monday, November 13, will see the inauguration of a new Association in the Colony. In starting a Hongkong Branch of the Royal Army Medical Corps' Association, those responsible are satisfying a long felt want. At present there are many ex-members of the Royal Army Medical Corps residing in the Colony who still take a keen interest in the Corps' activities and will only be too willing to help in any way whatsoever. Since the Association was formed in 1928, great work has been done in the finding of positions for R.A.M.C. men in civilian life. Hundreds of ex-Corps men have been found employment and many new friends have been made. Quite a number of distressed cases have been given a new term of life and their welfare has been seen to by almost paternal eyes. All ex-R.A.M.C. personnel and their friends at present residing in the Colony are cordially invited to the opening dance to be held in the Garrison Lecture Hall on November 13.

POLICE RESERVE.

CHINESE CONCERT AT KING'S THEATRE

Under the distinguished patronage of the Honourable Inspector General of Police, Mr. E.D.C. Wolfe, C.M.G., the Chinese Company of the Police Reserve will give a Chinese variety entertainment at the King's Theatre on Thursday at 9.30 p.m., at which His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, and Lady Peel have kindly consented to be present.

The Chinese Company was formed in 1927, being the first unit of the Police Reserve to come into being. Starting with twenty odd members, the Company has grown by leaps and bounds to the present strength of one hundred.

Apart from the issue of uniforms and equipment by the Government, the Company itself has to bear a heavy expenditure such as rental of the Headquarters premises and other expenses which are at present defrayed by a Finance Committee consisting of the Hon. Dr. S. W. Ta'o, the Hon. Mr. T.N. Chau, Messrs. Li Yau-tsun, Kwok Shing-lau, Chan Lim-pak, Ngan Shing-kwan, Leung Pot-yu, Chau Tung-sang, Mok Kon-sang, Tang Shuk-kin, Li Sing-ki and P. H. Sin.

This is the first occasion on which a Chinese performance has been staged at the King's Theatre. There will be a long and varied programme and an enjoyable and novel experience is in store for the audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Sit Kok-sin, well-known artists on both the stage and screen, together with other accomplished amateurs, will take part in the performance. An excellent opportunity will thus be afforded to the European community of the Colony to see and hear the best of Chinese play and music, in the most ideal surroundings.

It is hardly necessary to enlarge upon the important position occupied by the Chinese Company in the Police Reserve, and it is hoped that the public will give the

LEAGUE INTERVENTION IN DANZIG

Warsaw, Nov. 5. The League of Nations' High Commissioner for Danzig, M. Rosting, has requested that a meeting of the League Council be called to discuss the constitutionality of the action of the Danzig police in suspending two Danzig newspapers for publishing the speech of the Vice-President of the Senate, Herr Greiser, in which he instructed that the Danzig police must hold Nazi opinions.

M. Rosting asked the President of the Danzig Senate, Herr Rauschnig, to revoke the suspension, but Herr Rauschnig refused and declared that if the order were not obeyed, he would order the imprisonment of the complainants on the ground that their action had endangered the security of the Free City.

The Labour-Socialist Association of Danzig has also protested to M. Rosting against its dissolution by the police on the ground that it was endangering the security of the city.—Reuter.

FUNING TAKEN

ARTILLERY CREATES AWFUL HAVOC

Peking, Nov. 5. After a night of very severe fighting, in which the recently arrived heavy artillery played havoc with the bandit defenders, the Chinese Special Police force recaptured Funing this morning, according to a despatch from Chinese sources.

Almost half of the 1,600 defenders of Funing are reported to have been either killed or wounded, the rest escaping to the hills.

It is generally believed in Chinese circles here that the bandit situation in Luning is settled with the capture of Funing.

There has been fighting about the city for several weeks past, and losses on both sides have been considerable.—Reuter.

Innocent Victims.

Tientsin, Nov. 5. The city of Funing was at last surrendered to the Chinese Special Police by the bandits following an intensive bombardment of the city last night.

Before their surrender, the bandits placed a large number of innocent inhabitants of the city, including some aged men, on the top of the city wall as a means to compel the Police to suspend their artillery fire.

Now the city is strawn with the dead, bandits and innocent inhabitants.

The Chinese authorities are taking emergency measures for the rehabilitation of the city which has been in the grip of the bandits for a considerable time.—Central News Agency.

Japanese Withdraw.

Peking, Nov. 5. Japanese troops at the district of Melyun have completely withdrawn, handing over control of the district to the Chinese police force. The Chinese police are also prepared to take over control of Shihapphen.—Central News Agency.

DRIVE ON REDS.

Teng Hsi-hou Urged To Attack.

Nanking, Nov. 5. The Commander-in-Chief of the Communist suppression forces paid a flying visit to Chengtu for the purpose of urging Teng Hsi-hou to launch an immediate drive against the Communists from the south-west.

Yang Sen's forces are operating from the same direction and are reported to be advancing towards Yilung after having re-taken Yinslan, about ninety miles due north of Chungking.—Reuter.

CUT IN IMPORTS.

HEAVY BACON PRODUCTION IN ENGLAND

London, Nov. 4. The Minister of Agriculture, Major Walter E. Elliott, stated last night that the 16 per cent. cut in bacon imports would be in full operation within a week.

He said it had not been expected that any further reductions of substantial proportions would have been necessary before next March, but the unexpected and imposed and this further reduction of foreign supplies had been necessitated by a large increase in home production.

The volume of contracts totalling up to 620,000 pigs to be delivered to bacon factories between November and February—a figure which was a 70 per cent. increase on the level at this time last year. This level of home production was far in advance of almost any estimate.—British Wireless.

EMPIRE SHIPPING CONFERENCE.

BRITISH CARGOES FOR BRITISH SHIPS

London, Nov. 4. An All-Empire Conference will meet in London early in 1934 to preserve the Empire's cargoes for Empire ships, says the Daily Express.

An organising committee is being formed and invitations will be despatched to the representative shipping interests in the Dominions and the Colonies, this month.

Later. It is learned in the most authoritative shipping circles that it is too early to say when the shipping conference will definitely meet, but there is a strong feeling in many quarters that such a conference is the only solution to the shipping crisis.—Reuter.

SIAM FACES FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES

Singapore, Nov. 4. Guerrilla fighting is being carried on in north-east Siam against insurgents, according to a Bangkok message, delayed by the censors.

The revolt, up to the present, has caused damage estimated at several million ticals and is severely affecting the Administration, which is already faced with financial difficulties.

The Siamese Army has successfully exploited mechanised traction, aeroplanes and wireless in the present operations.—Reuter.

where the dead man lay. Morley was perfectly contented to remain in the boat, and offered no protest while the three other men embarked on their short, lugubrious journey. He took advantage of the opportunity to light a much-needed cigarette.

"What's wrong with passing them round?" asked Beryl Haines. "You're not the only one who feels nervy."

Meanwhile, Mr. Griddle was viewing the body. He stared at it long and earnestly, then turned to Leonard with a grunt.

"Well, what do you make of it?" he enquired shortly. "Anything?"

"Precious little," answered Leonard. "I think we'll let the police do the guessing."

"The police? Yes, of course. They'll have to be notified in the morning."

"They'll have to be notified before the morning," replied Leonard, quietly. "They'll have to be notified to-night."

Mr. Griddle frowned. "They can't do anything to-night."

"Very likely not, but I think we must give them the chance."

"They'll be most grateful, if I know anything about them," retorted Mr. Griddle, sarcastically. "Anyway, we can't notify them to-night."

"The phone won't be necessary. I shall walk to the station."

"It's three miles!"

"That's a nuisance, but it can't be helped."

Mr. Griddle's frown grew.

"I say, you're taking rather a lot on to yourself, aren't you?" he remarked. "I'm inclined to think this is really a position for a round-the-table discussion."

"But, good Lord, sir," broke in Napoleon, who had listened to this odd duel with considerable interest, "is there really anything to discuss you know? We find a dead man, and Guy Haines has disappeared—"

"And you think it will help matters to rush off and inform the police? Well, you may be right. But, damn it, it's not hard to guess what conclusion the police will come to!"

"What conclusion will they come to?" asked Leonard.

"They will come to the conclusion which is obvious when one man is found dead and another disappears."

Napoleon was about to make a heated remark when Leonard stopped him with a look.

"Is that your conclusion, Mr. Griddle?" he enquired.

"I have formed no conclusion—yet," responded the old man. "The fact remains, however, that Guy Haines has vanished at a most inopportune moment, and that the telephone wires have been cut. That is why it seems to me that we should not rush matters, but should only act after careful discussion. Once we let the police in, you see, they will be wretchedly curious—and they may even want to know how it is that you, Mr. Truelove, brought a revolver with you on this rather odd journey of yours. Of course," added Mr. Griddle, with a sour smile, "some interest attaches to this lunatic who appears to have been on the wreck when you arrived. But the police are funny about people who are merely described to them, and whom they do not see with their own eyes."

"By Jove, that's true!" murmured Leonard, and Napoleon stared at him. "You may be correct, after all, Mr. Griddle. 'Anyhow, I vote we return to the boat now and get back to the hotel. I'm fed up with this old hulk, and want a change of scene.'"

As they retraced their steps, the old man trotting ahead, Napoleon placed Leonard's arm and whispered:

"I say, aren't you going for the police?"

"Of course, I am," Leonard whispered back; "but Griddle seems so anxious for me not to that perhaps there's no need to let him know?"

TYPHOON'S TOLL

HEAVY DAMAGE IN ANNAM THIRTY KILLED

Paris, Nov. 5. It is learned from Hanoi that the typhoon which swept in rapidly from the Pacific, across the Philippines and into the Gulf of Tongking, struck the coast of Annam with extreme violence.

Considerable damage has been done and (says Reuter) thirty deaths have to be included in its toll.

Another story of devastation by the typhoon comes from Palawan, where extensive damage was done. A devastating flood followed in the wake of the storm, sweeping through the Iwahig penal colony.

One prisoner, C. A. Faustino, was drowned in the flood. The typhoon and flood wrought havoc to buildings and crops. A telegraphic report on the damage caused by the typhoon was sent to the director of prisons by Captain E. Misa, superintendent of Iwahig penal colony.

SIX FEET OF WATER.

The typhoon destroyed lines of communications, he reported, resulting in lack of reports from points inland. Exhibits in the carnival were among the articles washed away by the flood. The water rose at points to a height of six feet, destroying levees and five large bridges.

The entire colony is now busy removing the debris left by the flood. Heavy loss of life, including women and children, was averted through the heroic efforts of employees and colonists. The water supply system was destroyed as well as thousands of coconut trees.

Captain Misa's report to the director of prisons, reads as follows: "A devastating flood swept over the colony. Twenty kilometres of the provincial road, five large bridges, the Banojo oil soap factories, the water supply system and numerous concrete and dirt levees were destroyed. Communications were interrupted, and reports are incomplete."

HEAVY DAMAGE.

"Thousands of coconut trees, banana plants, bangus fry, hundreds of fruit trees, cubos, privately owned domestic animals, portion of the palay crop, copra and some government equipment and supplies were lost."

"Quina was under six feet of water. Logs, lumber, furniture and articles in the carnival exhibits were washed away."

"The Zabot family moved from their residence by launch. Heavy toll in life, women and children, was averted through the heroic efforts of employees and colonists. No news from Inagawan and distant outstations."

PUBLIC WORKS HIT.

The typhoon wrought extensive damage to property, houses, public works and crops in the Visayas. One person was killed in Panglao, Bohol.

The governor of Bohol reported that 19 houses in the town of Panglao alone were completely destroyed by the storm and at least 20 others were partially destroyed.

OUTBREAK FEARED IN SAAR

The League of Nations commission governing the Saar basin has issued a repression decree, due to Nazi demands for the return of the basin to Germany.

The population was so inflamed by developments that French authorities fear an outbreak which will cause trouble between France and Germany.

The decree included an increase in prison fines for carrying arms, and restricted the display of flags and political activities.

The Saar basin is to hold a plebiscite in 1935 to determine whether it will continue in its present status under the League, revert to Germany or go to France.

With this highly controversial decision impending, the League commission has a difficult task in keeping the peace, particularly in view of the new aggressiveness of the Nazis.

HEALTH EXHIBITION

INSTRUCTION FOR SCHOOLCHILDREN

OPENED TO-DAY

A two days' Health Exhibition was opened by the Director of Medical and Sanitary Services (the Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington) in the Great Hall of the Ellis Kadoorie School at Hospital Road this morning.

Organized by the Medical Officers of the Education Department, the Exhibition is primarily for the purpose of teaching schoolchildren the elements of health and sanitation; and the exhibits therefore were reduced to the greatest simplicity, being designed and arranged in such a manner as most likely to provoke interest and inquiry. Charts and illustrations necessarily play a major part in the demonstration.

PERSONAL HABITS.

The care of the teeth as an integral part of personal cleanliness was given a prominent place in the Exhibition, and pride of position was conferred on the time-honoured apple for its health-giving properties. The dangers of eating exposed food, cut fruit and wholly polished rice were also well illustrated; so was the beneficial action of sunlight on the body.

While providing an interesting instruction for the pupils from a number of schools, the promoters have also an eye on other matters concerning which a large proportion of the population are commonly at fault, and a number of charts and illustrations exhibited on the subject of consumption, malaria, eye and ear diseases, and the care of the baby, should prove of the utmost value.

TO-MORROW'S PROGRAMME.

The Exhibition is being continued to-morrow, when a programme is to be repeated comprising talks by Drs. Wong Hok-nin and Au King respectively on "Health Habits" and "Infection," and discussions by Nurse Sham on "Tuberculosis" and "Health in Schoolchildren." A play is also being staged by the pupils of the Bellios Public School under the direction of the Misses Lopes and Pok, in which the principal points in the preservation of health are cleverly brought out.

In declaring the Exhibition open this morning, the Hon. Dr. Wellington voiced an appreciation of the able services of Mr. J. Ralston, the Principal of the Ellis Kadoorie School, towards the function.

The Director of Education (Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith) presided at the opening.

She died as she lived, carefree and defiant.

"A speedy funeral" was her last request.

She said she wanted a "motor police escort and a bunch of college boys singing loudly while the coffin was being put into the hole, with Uncle Sam's 'Dripping Dry Boys' (Prohibition Agents) and big Butter-and-Egg Men (prostitutes) and suckers in attendance."

Her last words were her famous remark of welcome: "Give the little girl a great big hand."

COLOURFUL CAREER.

In her colourful career, Texas Guinan was in turn a cow-girl, a circus rider, an actress and a night club proprietress.

She was born on a ranch in Texas and was brought up among cowboys. Accustomed to riding every kind of horse from childhood she became when 16 a bare-back rider in a circus. Then she was an actress and later ran a night club in New York. She and just the qualifications needed, unbounded self-confidence and courage, an air of breezy geniality, an unlimited capacity for talking and a gift for organisation. Soon there were two or three clubs under her control and she had her own troupe of girl dancers and singers.

UNLICENSED ACTORS

POLICE PUT STOP TO PERFORMANCE

SWINDLE ALLEGED

The performance of a group of Chinese actors was nipped in the bud when the police visited No. 136, Johnston Road, 3rd floor, and took them into custody last night.

They were charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning, with having used the premises for public entertainment without a licence, and without a permit from the S.C.A. or the I.C.P.

The first defendant, Chung Hau, an actor was convicted and fined $100 or in default two months' imprisonment, while the others were discharged.

The defendants included a blacksmith, Chung Hin-sang, three unemployed, Lai Sui-cho, Chun Ming and Cheung Po, an unemployed seaman, Kong Yuen-sang, a boiler maker, Leung Sing, an unemployed hotel boy, Fung Wing and two spinsters, Chan King and Chan Mei.

The second defendant, Chung Hin-sang, acted as the spokesman of the party, and said that three years ago they had sent a petition to the S.C.A. from 119, Queen's Road, West, and had received a reply that they could put up a signboard. They had also petitioned the S.C.A. after their removal to Johnston Road, and were told they could put up the signboard; but were not given a written permit.

Sub-Inspector Elston said that three years ago a number of dockyard employees had formed a club called the Sing Sing Kit Sze to engage in amateur theatricals. No permission was given them, as it was not necessary. Now they were accused of running one without a licence. They held performances four times a week, and the average attendance was about hundred persons.

FITTED UP AS A THEATRE.

Inspector Elston said that at 8.45 p.m. yesterday he went to the 3rd floor of 136, Johnston Road. The floor was fitted up as a theatre, and he counted 132 adults and many children. They were watching a performance on a raised platform. Six of the defendants were in fancy costumes, and some were acting. An orchestra of Chinese violins was on the stage. The second defendant was acting as an interpreter, and the third defendant, Lai Sui-cho, was representing the King's daughter in the play. The two female defendants said they were soldiers. The actors pointed out the first defendant as being in charge of the floor. They said that their chairman was in Canton.

The first defendant, Chung Hau, said that they received contributions but were not selling tickets of admission. The spectators were all friends of the actors. They had permission from the S.C.A. to hold amateur theatricals at 119, Queen's Road, West, three years ago, but not after removal.

SWINDLE.

Inspector Elston added that in this case the police suggested a swindle. The actors and actresses were secured for nothing to be trained, and behind their backs the principals sold tickets.

Mr. Hamilton convicted the first defendant, because he had admitted he was in charge, and warned the others.

Inspector Elston said that the first defendant was an actor in Canton, and came to Hongkong and started a school for actors.

through the city in state on her favourite horse, dressed in a brilliant costume which included a sombrero, an open-necked shirt and white cowboy trousers. On such occasions she acted as mounted escort to a motorcoach load of her cabaret girls—her "kidds," as she called them. She never tasted alcoholic liquor herself, but she provided it for her "guests" which led to trouble with the authorities. On one occasion when Prohibition agents paid a surprise visit to one of her clubs after she had gone to bed she got through a trap-door in her pyjamas and led them a long chase over the roofs before she was captured.

In 1931 she resolved that her fame should extend to Europe and, shipping 16 of her "beautiful kidds" (a phrase rendered literally in the French papers as "beautiful young goats") with a band, two comedians, a maitre d'hotel and her white horse, she left for London and Paris.

She was, however, prohibited from landing in England. At Havre she found a similar bar regarding France. She and her company were detained for some time in the hotel for migrants until they could be shipped back home. The failure of her plans was a great disappointment to her.—Reuter and Special.

FIGHT IN SIKH TEMPLE

TWO INDIANS DEALT WITH SEVERELY

Prosecuting Pala Singh and Teja Singh, two Police guards, with fighting in Wanchai Acting Sub-Inspector Nolloth said that the I.C.P. asked that a serious view be taken as the police had been paying a lot of trouble with Indians in Wanchai recently.

Both defendants were fined $20 or in default three weeks' imprisonment each, and were also bound over in $50 each to be of good behaviour for six months by Mr. E. W. Hamilton this morning.

A. S. I. Nolloth said that on Friday night first defendant went to the Sikh temple in a drunken condition. He was asked to leave, but refused, and had to be put out. He returned about a quarter of an hour later, and had an argument with the second defendant, which ended in a fight. The police were called and the men arrested. The secretary of the temple also wished a serious view to be taken, as there was a lot of trouble among the Indians there.

Three notes which Koyama left revealed that he was in love with a girl named Sato, whose parents agreed to a marriage provided he changed his name to Sato, in accordance with the Japanese custom when there are no sons in the bride's family.

In one of the notes he expressed his unwillingness to disobey his father and the futility of life without the girl he loved, and concluded: "Please do not hate the Sates because of my act."—Reuter.

THE SEASON'S MOST THRILLING FOOTBALL MATCH

BORDERERS BEATEN

RUGBY WIN FOR THE CLUB

SUPERIORITY IN ALL DEPTS.

HUTCHISON'S FORM

(By "Line Out").

The Club scored a good victory at the expense of the Borderers on Saturday afternoon after a good open game. The Borderers were handicapped by the absence of one man throughout more than half of the game, and had only thirteen for the last ten minutes.

The Club three quarters combined well and were faster than their opponents, both Robertson and Riggs cutting through on several occasions to make good openings for their wings. Lammert and Ferguson were both in form the former scoring most good tries and Ferguson one. Riggs scored the fourth try for the Club, after waiting through most of the Borderers backs. McLellan converted one try and Robertson another. All the tries were spectacular efforts, but should have been stopped if the Borderers had tackled better.

HUTCHISON AGAIN.

Whitham was safe at back, but on one or two occasions he missed finding touch. Hutchison was a success at stand off half, as he took Selby's passes well, and had a good eye for an opening.

Selby threw out better passes than in the previous game, and the backs had plenty of opportunities as he regularly forwarded the ball regularly. The Club forwards were often rattled by the rushes of the Borderers forwards who were a typical lively Welsh pack. Cumming was the best of the forwards.

The Borderers backs ran across the field for too much and made little ground on the occasions they got a chance. It meant that the wings were always cramped for space, and were almost in touch when the ball reached them.

The Borderers scored their only try early in the second half when they intercepted a pass from Robertson in his own twenty-five and backed over Whitham's head, the ball bouncing nicely for Walters, who had backed up well, and he beat Whitham in the dash for the line.

NAVY BEAT CLUB "A".

Several well-known Navy Rugby men were seen in action against the Club "A" on Saturday afternoon at Happy Valley. The Navy side won by four tries and one goal (17 points) to three tries (9 points).

The Club put up a fine struggle against a very much superior side, and although they were beaten for the ball in most of the tight scrums, the three quarters were dangerous on the few occasions they did get a chance. Archer and Griffiths combined well, and the latter was responsible for opening the score after Archer had run well down down the wing.

"Telegraph" Picks The Winners

GOOD RESULTS IN OUR FORECASTS

Proof that the Telegraph is the most reliable of all local guides in sporting activities is to be found in the achievements of our sports correspondents this week.

RACING: "Captain Foster" gave five winners and 16 placed ponies at the Happy Valley race meeting on Saturday.

"Ringtail" picked four winners and 18 placed runners. These figures compare with "Morning Dew" who picked four winners and 14 places, "Rapid" who had five first and 17 placed ponies and "Early Bird," who forecasted four winners and 16 places.

HOME FOOTBALL: In his extraordinarily accurate "Beat The Book" selections, "Robin" gave eleven out of twelve correct home results, had 100 per cent. correct away forecast for three matches, and went down only on the drawn games.

He actually gave 14 correct results out of a selection of 18 matches.

"The Pilgrim" achieved a good performance in his forecast of all the division in home football, returning 31 correct results.

LOCAL FOOTBALL: "Veritas" picked ten correct results out of 13 matches, including the drawn games between the Lincolns and Navy in the second division and the R.A.S.C. and R.A.M.C. in the third division.

St. Claire Ford, the Scottish international wing three quarters then ran well to score three unconverted tries before half time.

The Club scored first in the second half touching down after a maul on the Navy line, and then Miers and Thomas added further tries for the Navy, the latter being converted. Just before the final whistle the Club scored through Jenkins who caught a bouncing ball well and ran half the length of the field.

GOING ON LEAVE

Indian Hockey Captain Honoured By Club

Mr. Ahmed Khan, the ex-Captain of the K.I.T.C. Hockey Team, who is going on long leave to India shortly was entertained to a dinner party at the Club-House last night.

All the Hockey enthusiasts, including the Club's Vice-President, Mr. M. A. Khan, were present. In wishing Mr. Ahmed Khan bon voyage and an enjoyable holiday in India, Mr. M. A. Khan said that the Club's Hockey Team will feel his loss badly. He added that although Mr. Ahmed Khan was comparatively new to the game, he was just as good as any other. Mr. Ahmed Khan replied suitably.

These present were then entertained by a most humorous speech in Punjabi by Mr. Waryan Singh, aided by Mr. Firdos Khan.

MULE CORPS DEFEATED BY UNITED H.C.

The United Hockey Club gained two more points in the Mank Tournament yesterday when they defeated the Hongkong Mule Corps on the Marina ground by one goal to nil. The United had the better of the exchanges, but were weak in front of goal. Several golden opportunities were missed, especially in the second half, when on two occasions they missed passes from their halves in the goalmouth. In fact, at the right back for the United was the outstanding player, G. Winch scored the only goal of the match.

HONGKONG LADIES WIN.

Playing at Sookunpoo on Saturday the Hongkong Ladies' Hockey Club defeated the Club de Recreo ladies by three goals to one. Miss J. Churchill scored all three goals for the winners while Miss M. Rose netted for the losers.

SCHOOL GIRLS TROUNCED. The "B" team of the Hongkong Ladies' Hockey Club trounced the Central British School team by ten goals to one after leading by 4-1 at half time. The match was played at Happy Valley, Mrs. Adam (6) and Miss Hoebing (4) being the scorers for the winners and Miss H. Knill for the losers.

TAY QUA TONG MAKES HISTORY

TURNED OFF FIELD IN FIRST MATCH FOR NEW CLUB

Tay Qua-tong, the Singapore football star, made his first appearance for South China in local league football yesterday. For sixty minutes he delighted the crowd with a clever display of speedy football on the left wing.

Then, impelled by the excitement of the occasion, he crossed over to the other side of the field, where Underwood and Tay left half had possession of the ball.

Tay fouled him. Underwood hit him, and the Chinese had the almost unique experience of being sent off the field in his first match.

chief offenders.

It was palpably obvious after the first ten minutes that the essential weakness in the Artillery forward line was the right wing. I say this after due consideration of the fact that Snooks, the outside right, has been selected for the Services eleven against the F. A., for next Saturday, and that he is an old Army representative footballer.

By the same token it was emphasized that if the Artillery were to score goals their real hopes lay in the left wing, where not only was Greenfield a very forceful personality at inside left, but Snook was more than capable of holding his own against the opposition.

Left Wing Starved

By that strange trick of perspective which so often assails football players, Snook was left severely alone by his colleagues, Greenfield had to go for the ball if he wanted it, and all of the Gunners' attacks were concentrated on the right wing. It may not be right to aver that the Artillery would have won had they kept the ball on the left wing, but I certainly think they would have gone nearer than they did.

Not only was Snooks completely bottled up by Elms (by the way the selectors would do well to keep an eye on this youngster, who packs more skill in his boots and intelligent football theory in his head than a good many of our tried and trusted representative players), but Snook was just a pawn in the hands of A. V. Gosano.

Pardoe's Wasted Work

In spite of this Pardoe and Rodger continued to ply these forwards with perfect passes, until every Artillery attacking movement became known almost before they were initiated. Not for a long time have I seen Pardoe waste himself as he did on Saturday. He seemed obsessed with the idea of right wing passes and as a result until all the excellent breaking up work previously accomplished. Back in the defence Allan excelled himself, but Wroe was often caught napping and his kicking was weak in the extreme.

A critical survey of St. Joseph's is far more difficult. They scored three goals and won, and even if, in other respects they were not unusually impressive, it has also to be recorded that they revealed no weakness. They touched a mediocre level in almost everything they did, and this was sufficient to pull them through.

The real redeeming quality of the forwards was to be found in their opportunism. They scored four snap goals because Leonard and Ward were alert enough to seize their openings.

On the move they rarely looked dangerous. Leonard scored his second goal from a dead kick. Ward obtained his goals from breakaway in midfield they hardly ever obtained mastery. Leonard was a live figure and required careful watching. Ward too gave him useful support. But one could not extol over the virtues of the rest of the attack.

Football Text-Book

Elms was the dominating figure among the halves. Against South China he played on the right wing. Yet switched across to left half he seemed much happier.

There is any amount of promise in this former Radio Sports Club player. He has speed, tackle, judiciously, makes intelligent use of his head, and knows how to pass. On Saturday a small edition of (Continued on Page 9.)

HOW S. CHINA BEAT THE 24TH

WITH YEUNG'S CORNERS

BORDERERS A BIT UNLUCKY

DESERVED TO DRAW

(By "Veritas").

Not for many a long day has a football match at Sookunpoo seen so much excitement, such a number of incidents, more spectacular exchanges and such a huge crowd as the meeting between the Borderers and South China yesterday afternoon.

South China won by the odd goal in five after (a) they had been hustled and harassed until it was with ill-concealed relief that they greeted the closing whistle; (b) the pitch had been invaded with hundreds of spectators rushing to gain shelter from the rain; (c) Tay Qua-tong and Underwood had come to blows and both had been sent off the field.

It was a glorious match; fast, vigorous, sincere football which had scant respect for the finer points of the game, but which, by its very keenness, and the quick reactions of the crowd, made it the most spectacular encounter of the season so far. The team which, because it had lost to H.M.S. Berwick during the week, we were told stood not the slightest chance against the machine-like Chinese, staged a thrilling come-back. They deserved to draw. This is no reflection on South China, but an acknowledgment of the fighting qualities of the Borderers.

From the word Go, the play swept up and down the field; the Chinese always that shade more scientific and more dangerous in front of goal, but no more purposeful than the 24th, who, appreciating the need for quick tackling, quick ball distribution and quick shooting, added about 20 per cent. speed to their usual game and by so doing only just missed bringing off the biggest surprise imaginable.

Sensational Opening

There was a truly sensational opening. In the first half minute, the Borderers literally hurled themselves up the field, caught the South China defence in two minds, forced Li Tin-sang to miskick and Fourty broke through to score.

But this was only the beginning, although most of the excitement came in the second half, and was engendered mainly by the fact that time was rapidly passing and that there was the need in the first place for the Borderers to draw level, and subsequently for one of the teams to obtain the winning goal.

Sandwiched in between was the invasion of the playing field, causing the game to be held up for two or three minutes, and a penalty missed by Hazlewood.

Not the least interesting feature of the match was the change in tactics by the Chinese. They forsook to a large extent their customary methods of attack—short interpassing between half back and forwards—and based their attacks on the forward pass. With the state of the ground often causing the ball to be ground out, it was quite a sound policy, although curiously enough none of the South China goals resulted from any such movement.

Young's Corner Kicks

Without hesitation I give Yeung Shul-yick credit for the champions' victory. It was his two perfectly placed corners which gave them the decisive goals. So brilliantly were they placed that it was impossible not to score from them. They were almost in the net before Tam Kong-pak touched them.

TACTICS AT FAULT

ARTILLERY IN DOLDRUMS

SAINTS SCORE THE GOALS

(By "Veritas").

After Saturday's display against St. Joseph's the Royal Artillery supporters must be getting weary of finding excuses for their team.

It was the old old story; a goodly share of the play, lots of promising movements, and no marksmen. But perhaps the latter part of that sentence requires qualification. If one acknowledges Seal's shot which gave the Artillery their first goal, together with the solitary efforts of Greenfield in the first half, one comes to the conclusion that the marksmen were there, but just wouldn't give expression to their talents.

Opening after opening was contemptuously ignored by Smith and Leach, and in a lesser degree by Greenfield, who preferred to run around in small circles a dozen yards away from Marques until one of the Saints defenders nipped in to rob them.

On the whole it was a dull match with rare interludes of that type of football which one would expect from first division teams. Although they won—and that deservedly—St. Joseph's did nothing to make me alter my view expressed on Saturday, that they are not such a good team as their record would suggest.

True they scored goals, which was more than the Artillery could do, but there was no other feature about their play which would cause one to exclaim "Ah! Here is a championship winning team".

Tactical Error

Perhaps the most significant fact about the game was that the Artillery had twice as many chances of scoring than the winners. In fact the Gunners had the major share of the exchanges, and were certainly more methodical in their approach work. But their advantages stopped at that point. Once in front of goal, and the Artillery melted out of the picture.

But the losers were also guilty of a grave tactical blunder. And it was surprising to find Pardoe among the

Those who expected this to sound the death knell of the soldiers were quickly made to think again. They went down with a concerted rush, and Tong Kwan fouled in the normally Hazlewood, entrusted with the kick shot straight at Wong Wing who cleared in fine style.

"That's finished it!" said the crowd. But they were wrong. As though smarting with the injustice of fate, the 24th again swept down the field. The attack was initiated by Morrison, and it was obvious that something had to happen.

It did. Unable to stem the force of the movement, the Chinese defence wilted and Harris equalised with a shot which hit the underneath of the cross bar.

The Deciding Goal

With a drawn match looking as safe as houses, the crowd were once again given a display of Chinese opportunism. Young succeeded in forcing a corner from a breakaway, and placing the kick like one inspired had the satisfaction of seeing Tam head in.

After this there was a lot of "take the man" type of football, and Tay threatened Underwood by running across from the left wing and badly fouling him. Unable to restrain himself, the Borderers left half hit Tay, and the referee had no option but to send both off the field in the very last minute. It happened in the very last minute, an unhappy ending to a memorable match.

BOMBINGS, SHOOTING AND SABOTAGE IN AMERICA

NEW YORK STOCKS

MIXED BUSINESS NEWS

CLOUDED PICTURE

New York, Nov. 4. The Stock Market was decidedly dull to-day and other than the usual week-end sell-off, displayed no pronounced tendency either one way or the other. The public apparently does not understand the policy of foreign gold purchases pursued by the Administration and is at present awaiting developments.

December Silver was quite strong for most of the session but met with profit-taking on the upside and closed below the high for the day but 45 points above its price at the close of the previous session. December Rubber was also strong—closing up 25 points. Wheat and Cotton were steady but closed slightly off.

Business news is mixed. Retail buying is responding to the usual seasonal influences as the Christmas holidays draw near, but industrial output, influenced in part no doubt by currency uncertainties is receding slightly against the usual seasonal trend.

More favourable third quarter earnings are being reported and a gradual increase in size and breadth of dividend payments is expected next year.

MONEY MARKET DOUBTS.

Monetary uncertainties are clouding the entire picture and the struggle between the proponents of currency inflation and their opponents is being closely followed by traders and investors.

Reliable sources of information continued to advise against the purchase of gilt edged bonds but they consider that the buying of second grade issues is advisable for those who want an adequate return on their invested capital with the probability of appreciation of principal. Per Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

LORRY WRECKED

ANOTHER MISHAP IN BANK DEMOLITION

One of the huge pillars which graced the entrance of the old premises of the Bank, wrecked a new Ford Lorry belonging to the Yee Sang Tai Firm yesterday. The lorry was stationary in Wardley Street.

A huge pillar consisting of a number of cylindrical pieces of granite held together by cement, was being lifted by a crane when a portion of it fell and, dropped upon the lorry at a point near the driver's seat, almost cutting the vehicle into two.

Fortunately there was no one in or near the lorry at the time.

POLICE RESERVIST GIVES CHASE

THIEF CAUGHT IN A CUL DE SAC

After snatching twenty cents from a cigarette stall in Tank Lane, an unemployed Chinese found himself in a cul de sac. He was chased by a Police Reservist, Yung Shu-chung, and was trapped by a district watchman coming in the opposite direction.

Defendant appeared before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning, when he pleaded guilty and was bound over.

150 POLICE SEARCH ALL NIGHT

For Englishwoman's False Teeth

Belgrade. Fifty Yugoslav gendarmes and a hundred special police have spent an entire night searching for two sets of false teeth which were stolen from an English woman journalist.

The lady, who is travelling correspondent for a London paper, had an appointment with King Zog of Albania. How could she see him without her teeth?

The Belgrade Chief of Police and the Minister of the Interior gave orders to the police to find the teeth "or die in the attempt." Hundreds of peasants were arrested, hundreds of others were cross-examined. The teeth were recovered within 36 hours and the lady kept her appointment.

THE STORY.

Here is the story: Miss "X" who drives about Europe interviewing monarchs and dictators, came one night to the banks of the Danube near Pancevo and tried to cross to Belgrade.

Her car stuck in the mud. She hired peasants and a team of horses to pull it out. But she had no Yugoslav dinars and the peasants had no use for English currency.

Finally it was arranged that one of the peasants should accompany Miss "X" to Belgrade. But when they reached the city it was found that Miss "X's" trunk had been cut from the luggage carrier at the back of the car.

The whole police system of the country was set in motion. Within a few hours everything had been recovered except the two sets of teeth—one gold and one platinum.

Then it was the real hunt began.—Reuter.

ITALIAN BABIES RECEIVE BAPTISM AT ST. PETER'S

Rome, Nov. 5.

Following the successful mass wedding on October 30 when over 2,000 couples were married at dawn, in celebration of the Fascist Marriage Festival, a mass christening was held this evening.

Over 40 babies were christened at St. Peter's, after which an official reception was held, when each child was given a baby's outfit from Mussolini and a medal from the Pope.—Reuter.

The marriage festival was arranged to counteract the severe decline in the Italian birth rate. Each couple married received a photograph of Mussolini and a gift of 500 lire, presented by the Fascist Party.

STOLE DOORS FROM HOUSES

DETECTIVE CATCHES MEN SAWING THEM UP

Prosecuting two Chinese for stealing, Detective-Sergeant Fowle informed Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning that they took four wooden doors from 58 and 62 Staunton Street.

A detective went to a lane at the back of 34 Bridges Street, and there saw the defendants in the act of sawing up the doors.

First defendant, who had two previous convictions, was sent to prison for two months, while the second was bound over.

THE PALESTINE SITUATION

BRITISH PLANES DISPERSE RIOTERS

Jerusalem, Nov. 3.

British airplanes zoomed down threateningly to disperse hundreds of Arabs enroute to Jerusalem to protest against Great Britain's Jewish policy in Palestine.

The R.M.S. Empress of Russia is due at Shanghai to-day at 3 p.m. and leaves for Hongkong to-morrow at 7 a.m.

H.M.S. Wild Swan sails for Shanghai on Friday, and H.M.S. Medway and Small Ships are due in the Colony from the north on Thursday.

VIOLENCE IN MIDDLE WEST

FARM STRIKE REVIVED AND MORE INTENSE

TWO MILLIONS AFFECTED

Dos Moines, Nov. 5. Two million farmers in more than half the States of the Union are involved in the renewed farm strike in the Middle West.

The revival of strike agitation for prices showing a fair profit has swept through the agricultural States following indication of President Roosevelt's opposition to deliberate price-fixing for farm produce.

In their present mood, it is stated, such price-fixing is the only thing that will satisfy the farmers.

EVERY WEAPON.

The Iowa strike-leader has ordered the farmers "to use every weapon" to achieve their objective.

Farm skirmishes, bombing and shooting and the demolition of cheese factories, have been features of the strike so far, and there is grave reason to fear that the violence may become more serious.

COMPROMISE SOUGHT.

Meanwhile, Mr. Wallace, the Secretary of the Agriculture Department, and the Governors of the Farm States are drafting a new formula, embodying parity prices, a quota system and United States purchases of surpluses.—Reuter.

LABOUR PARTY AND INDIA

VIOLENCE CONDEMNED BY MR. LANSBURY

Mr. George Lansbury, at the Labour Party Conference, took the opportunity to-day to condemn violence in India.

The occasion was a resolution demanding self-determination and self-government for India.

Before Mr. Lansbury spoke there had been one or two violent speeches.

Mr. R. Sorenson, of West Ham, declared that British rule in India was really "Hitlerism."

When this argument was repeated by Miss Monica Whately, several members of the Conference called out, "No, no, no." Then Mr. Lansbury rose. They all deplored, he stated, all the cruelties that drove people to violence.

"I think I would not be doing my duty," he continued, "if I did not say that everyone of us deplores any resort to assassination under any conditions prevailing. Every assassination that takes place injures not the Government, but the cause which the men who do it think they are serving."

MR. HENDERSON'S POSITION. There was a discussion on a resolution demanding the conclusion of a permanent trade agreement with Russia—"with adequate credit facilities."

This was marked by one or two speeches of the real Communist flavour.

Mr. R. C. Wallhead, M.P., declared that the "wretched thing from Ottawa" was standing in the way of concluding a trade agreement now.

The resolution was carried. The Miners' Federation were given an opportunity to ventilate their wages grievances.

Mr. Griffiths moved a resolution demanding a new Minimum Wage Act to provide for wages not less than those paid in 1914, plus the increase in the cost of living.

He made a pointed reference to Mr. Greenwood's declaration earlier in the week, in favour of securing the maximum of socialism in the minimum of time, and asked the platform what they proposed to do for the worker while they were transforming the capitalist system into an awkward question, to which there was no reply.

A resolution was passed ordering the Executive to institute a retiring age for all the paid staff of the Labour Party, with a superannuation scheme.

This resolution is aimed, primarily, at Mr. Arthur Henderson. After what happened in private session the other day, it may mean his early retirement.

Scenes of violence have accompanied many of the recent strikes in the United States. The above picture was taken in the Pennsylvania coal area recently, showing men armed for combat.

NANKING FINANCE.

MR. H. H. KUNG PROMISES TO UPHOLD CREDIT

Shanghai, Nov. 3. After conferring with Mr. H. H. Kung throughout the morning, Mr. T. V. Soong declared that they discussed matters relating to the handing over of the Finance Ministry.

Mr. Soong said that he had not yet decided whether to remain in office as a member of the National Economic Council. He added that he is leaving Shanghai shortly for a brief rest.

Mr. H. H. Kung declared that he is assuming office as Vice-President of the Executive Yuan next Monday when Mr. Wang Ching-wei will officiate at the ceremony.

Mr. Li Tiao-shen, the Vice-Minister's resignation has been accepted and Mr. Chin Fen has been promoted to the vacancy.

Mr. Kung said that funds have already been raised to meet expenditure for the current month.

SHORTEST WAVE TELEPHONY

Experiments Across Bristol Channel

SIX TALKS AT SAME TIME

On a bracken-covered hilltop six miles from Cardiff is a wireless transmitter which soon may be regarded as the father of commercial ultra-short wave telephony.

It is the predecessor of the new six-channel transmitting and receiving equipment which Post Office engineers are building for the Cardiff-Weston-super-Mare wireless telephone link, and ultimately for the replacement of many of the telephone and telegraph cables across the English Channel.

Out in the Bristol Channel, in a line with Weston-super-Mare is the island of Flatholm, between which and another point near Cardiff Marchese Marconi carried out his first practical wireless tests 37 years ago.

The total power required for transmission is only that of an average domestic electric lamp, and eleven valves of standard commercial or Post Office types suffice for both transmission and reception.

Hutton, the station on the lower slopes of Bleadon Hill, near Weston-super-Mare, is within sight of the Welsh transmitter, and the guardian of the huts stated that by the use of mirrors he and his colleague could tell in what part of their respective properties the other was standing.

It was between Cardiff and Weston that, in the early days of heliograph signalling, the Admiralty made test transmissions.

SPEAKING TEST.

Speaking by ultra-short wave wireless to Hutton station a marked undercurrent of noise is noticeable. Conversation, however, is readily possible, and when the land links on either side are brought into operation this background noise is automatically removed.

Dinas Powis is the name of the present station. The station for the new six channel equipment is to be at Pen-y-lan farm, near Marshfield—a picturesque farm-house with stone-flagged floors and courtyard. Boundary pegs are as yet the only sign of the new station. But extra long telegraph posts for the aërial will soon be erected, and construction of the two huts began.

The Weston station is also to be moved further up the Channel—to a point on Backwell Hill behind Clevedon. Both these stations will be about 400 feet above sea level. They will be within sight of each other, as at present.

Distance, however, is in this case practically immaterial since it is already known that in favourable conditions communication on ultra-short waves can be maintained up to 100 miles or more.

The main advantage of the proposed new transmitter is that six conversations can be carried at the same time.

It was not necessary to conclude further loans. He declared that he will do his best to uphold Government credit both at home and abroad.

Mr. Kung will be leaving Shanghai for Nanking on Sunday evening.—Reuter.

OBITUARY

SIR HENRY MERRICK LAWSON

London, Nov. 5.

The death is announced of Lieut-General Sir Henry Merrick Lawson, at the age of 74 years. Sir Henry has had a distinguished military career. He saw service in Egypt and South Africa, and since 1900 had filled numerous administrative and command appointments.—Our Own Correspondent.

Sir Henry was born in Dublin, and was the fourth son of the late Rt. Hon. James A. Lawson, Justice of the Court of Queen's Bench, Ireland. In 1912 he married the Countess of Lathom, C.B.E., daughter of the fifth Earl of Radnor and widow of the second Earl of Lathom. She died in 1931.

Educated at Cheltenham College and the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, Sir Henry joined the Army as a Lieutenant in the Royal Engineers in 1877. He served in the Sudan Expedition in 1894 and in the following year in the Nile Expedition with the brevet of Major. Three years later he was with the Egyptian Army in the Soudan Campaign and was dangerously wounded. From 1899 until 1902 he served in the South African War, and was made A.D.C. to His Majesty the King. Up to the end of the War he held staff appointments as D.A.A.G., Dublin District, D.A.Q.M.G., Army Headquarters, as well as being Assistant-Adjutant-General, Deputy-Adjutant-General and later Brigadier-General on the staff in South Africa. He was mentioned in despatches and awarded the Queen's Medal with four clasps. He was also invested with the Order of Companion of the Bath.

From 1904 until 1906 he was Director of Movements and Quarterings at the War Office and in the latter year took over the command of the 15th Infantry Brigade stationed in Dublin. The following year he was appointed Major-General in Charge of Administration, Aldershot Command.

This appointment he held for three years and from then until 1914 commanded the 2nd Division. During the first year of the Great War he was Lieut-Governor of Guernsey and Alderney and the following year was O. C. Northern Command. His next appointment was that of Inspector General of Communications in Italy, a post he relinquished in 1918. Three years later he retired on pay.

INDIAN CONSTABLE TELLS OF ATTACK

Some excitement was caused in Upper Lascar Road, the Paddy's Market area, yesterday morning when an Indian constable is alleged to have been attacked by an unruly crowd after he had made an arrest, drawn his revolver and fired a shot which struck a man in the right heel. The Constable involved was Inam Ali Shan, I.P.C. 8631.

The trouble originated when the constable arrested a woman named Lal Nui who was carrying three tins alleged to have contained Chinese wine. Several supporters of the woman then made us if to attack the constable, and he was compelled to fire for his own safety.

A man named Lam Lin was hit in the right heel, the bullet entering the Chinese shoe he was wearing, and causing a superficial wound, which proved very painful. The arrested woman was taken to the charge room of the Central Police Station, and was followed by the man, Lam Lin, who limped in supported by an elderly man.

Reports were made, the Police constable alleging that when he tried to arrest the woman he had been pelted with stones, several of which struck him. Marks were visible on the back of his shirt and on the leather revolver holster he carried.

The injured man was taken to the Government Civil Hospital in an ambulance, and the matter is being investigated.

The woman will be charged to-day with resisting arrest.

ROCKET FLIGHT

HUMAN RIDES HUGE PROJECTILE

London, Nov. 5.

For the first time in history successful experiments have been made with a passenger-carrying rocket, says an article to-day in the Sunday Referee.

A strictly secret trial flight was made on the Baltic Sea island of Rugen, under the auspices of the German War Ministry, the story says. The War Ministry bought the plans for the rocket from the inventor, Otto Fischer.

The brother of the designer of the rocket, Bruno Fischer, risked his life to demonstrate the mechanism.

The rocket, a twenty-four foot, torpedo-shaped projectile, was fired from a steel frame-work, but thereafter was propelled by rockets in its tail released automatically at timed intervals.

The enormous device soared over six miles into the air, according to reports. The force of the descent was broken by a parachute attachment, and the intrepid rider landed uninjured, though white and shaken.

He said he lost consciousness momentarily during the flight, owing to the tremendous acceleration at the start. When he recovered he found the altimeter registering 32,000 feet.—Reuter.

He was educated in America and fled there, about fifteen years ago, when prosecution followed his work at labour organisation.—Reuter.

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

West can hardly be criticized for doubling a five diamond contract on the following problem hand. However Mr. John Ray, youngest player ever to win a national championship, was successful in making the contract.

The Bidding

South bid one heart. West passed and North bid two diamonds. South bid three clubs. North bid three no trump and South bid four clubs. North bid four diamonds and South went to five diamonds. West doubled and Mr. Ray in the North doubled.

The Play

The opening lead was the queen of spades, which Mr. Ray won with the ace. He immediately led the queen of clubs and followed with the five of clubs, winning in dummy with the jack.

The ace of clubs was played and West trumped with the deuce of diamonds. North over-trumped with the three of diamonds and then led the five of spades, trumping in dummy with the ten of diamonds.

The king of clubs was then led and this time West trumped with the nine of diamonds. Mr. Ray in the North over-trumped with the ace of diamonds and then led the five of diamonds which West won with the king. West returned a spade, North winning with the king and then leading the eight of diamonds which West won with the jack.

West returned another spade which Mr. Ray in the North trumped with the six of diamonds, after which he led the seven spot.

ty Rex", which comes to the King's Theatre on Wednesday. The film is said to afford McLaughlin the most comical role of his career, for assuming "The cool-eyed World" and "What Price Glory" in its farcical possibilities.

Greta Nissen, who has the role of a platinum blonde sweetie in "Rackety Rex", shares honours in the comedy scenes with Nell O'Day, from the musical comedy stage. Marjorie Beebe as a racketeer's battling wife and Esther Howard as a "fixer" or muscle-linner's go-between, both have parts which are reported as having plenty of opportunity for laughter.

The comedians in "Rackety Rex" are Arthur Pierson as a sporting page press-agent; Allen Dinehart, as a sanctimonious college professor and underworld lawyer-fixer; Allen Jenkins; Vince Barnett, Hollywood's cleverest "climber"; Stanley Fields, Ivan Linow, Ward and John Kores, the latter in real life "The Mayor of Chinatown" in New York.

INTERPORT MAY START TO-MORROW

IF THE WEATHER
CLEARS UP

UNITED SERVICES
GAME DOUBTFUL

With the continuation of this morning's rain all hopes of the Interport cricket match, between Hongkong and Malaya making a start to-day disappeared. Although there does not seem to be much prospect of the weather clearing up, it is hoped to make a start to-morrow. If play is not possible, and if the game commences on Wednesday, the Hongkong players will have a stretch of four days' cricket, as the match against Shanghai has been scheduled to begin on Saturday, November 11.

THE UMPIRES.

In this event, the Malaya-United Services match, which is billed for Friday, will probably have to be abandoned unless a date can be found to fit in later. Accompanying the Malayan team is Mr. W. V. Denn, who will be acting in the capacity of umpire in both their matches. Mr. P. E. Baskett will be officiating for Hongkong.

The Shanghai players are due here on Friday morning. R. N. Hamilton told a Telegraph representative that the Malayan team would consist of the following:

R. N. Hamilton (Capt.), V. Croome, W. O. Jonklaus, G. Willis, D. C. Burn, R. G. Gibson, R. Morgan, L. Alvis, Eu Cheow-tell, B. S. Gill and C. A. Speldewinde, 12th man:—R. B. Lewis.

MANUEL QUEZON IN HONGKONG

INDEPENDENCE MISSION

ON WAY TO THE
UNITED STATES

The Hon. Manuel L. Quezon, President of the Philippine Senate, arrived in the Colony this morning aboard the President Hoover and will sail with her to the United States. He is heading the advance guard of the latest and probably "last" legislative delegation from Manila in quest of Philippine independence.

Mr. Quezon, before leaving Manila, was hardly able to take a respite from the series of conferences and farewell dinners and parties in his honour for nearly a week and appeared much the worse for it. He was looking in poor health when interviewed for a brief moment to-day.

LAST CONFERENCE.

His last meeting in Manila was a prolonged conference late on Friday night at his Pasay residence with all the Philippine members of the cabinet including some of the under secretaries. What was discussed in this conference was not revealed but it was believed it dealt with government and administrative matters.

Mr. Quezon's party includes Senator Elpidio Quirino, majority floor leader; Vicente Singson Encarnacion, acting secretary of finance; Isidro Gualdo, Mr. and Mrs. Jose P. Melencio; Jose de Jesus, secretary to Mr. Quezon; Severiano Concepcion, secretary to Mr. Gualdo, and Sergio Maticia, valet to Mr. Quezon.

One of the most imposing farewell demonstrations seen in Manila marked Mr. Quezon's departure.

SHAKE-UP IN ITALY

GENERAL BALBO TO RESIGN

STRONG RUMOURS PERSIST

Rome, Nov. 5.

Strong rumours are in circulation that the King will to-morrow accept the resignation of General Balbo, the Minister for Air.

It has, however, been impossible to obtain confirmation of the rumour which has been gaining strength daily, despite one official statement that it is merely a repetition of a rumour circulated some time ago.

It is, however, firmly believed in normally well-informed quarters that a Cabinet shake-up is to be expected shortly.

It is said that Signor Mussolini intends to combine the War Office, Air Minister and Naval Department into a Ministry of National Defence, combining the Army, the Navy and the Air Force, and that Signor Mussolini will himself take charge of the Ministry.

This would necessitate the resignation of Admiral Sclafani, of the Navy Office, as well as General Balbo.—Reuter.

Dr. R. A. de Castro Basto, M.D., D.O.M.S., the well-known Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat specialist, accompanied by Madame Basto, returned to the Colony on Saturday by the N.Y. Conte Verde.
